Sunk in Sink

Louis Hepler, 26, has his finger extricated from drain of sink at Cambridge fire headquarters by Fireman George Thorpe after the member became caught while he was attempting repairs in his Decatur st., Cambridge, home. Hepler disconnected the sink when trapped, carried it five blocks to recruit the aid of James Mack (left), a male nurse, and Patrolman William Killian . . . then moved to the station for the coming-out "party." Later, he lugged the sink (see Page 3) home

$50,000 Holdup At Harvard Coop

Four bandits who set off smoke bombs to cover their activities hed up the Harvard Co-operative Society, a big retail department store in busy Harvard sq. today, and escaped with $50,000 in cash which had just been delivered by armored car. The robbers worked with split-second precision after firing the two bombs that threw more than 100 customers and clerks into panic. Patrons' shouts of "Fire! Fire!" sent store personnel scurrying to investigate as the bombs went off near both entrances.

Five policemen were within shouting distance during the hold-up, one of them on traffic duty less than 15 feet from the Coop's front entrance.

Aided by the smoke screen and commotion, a short stocky man walked through the clerical office to the rear entrance of the cashier's cage, scooped up the paper bag with the cash and ran. "I saw him coming out," Miss Helen Chalmers, 29, of Egerton rd., Arlington, an assistant buyer for the Coop, reported. "He carried the money bag under his arm like a football. He ran like a football player. When he reached the center of the store, he dashed for

Don Courtney

DISORDER REIGNS

By this time, the Coop was a scene of wild disorder. Smoke was billowing from both entrances—out into busy Harvard sq., in front, and into Palmer st., a short street that leads to Brattle st., in the rear. Someone sounded an alarm and fire engines were racing to the scene.

Few realized that the smoke was a cover-up for the well executed haul of $50,000, the normal Friday cash delivery to the Coop for cashing checks of Harvard students and faculty members. The Cambridge Trust Co. in Harvard sq. handles the account of the Coop, but the cash was delivered by armored car from a clearing house in Boston.

One of the first aware that a holdup was in progress was Miss Hazel Houghton, a clerk. She saw the bandits bound for the cashier's office and shouted to Andrew Dupre, an assistant manager. But Dupre was racing to the front of the store to investigate the smoke.

GRABS MONEY BAG

When Dupre arrived near the front entrance, one of the gang sidled up to him, and delivering orders with what appeared to be a concealed gun, said: "Get up against that wall and stay there."

The cash-carrying robber by this time had reached the cashier's

U. S. Marines Reported Due In Holy Land

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Highly qualified informants in Whitehall said tonight the United States has asked and received approval from the Palestine government to dispatch U. S. Marines to the Holy Land as a guard for the U. S. consulate there.

The informant did not know how many Marines might be sent, nor when. Marines left North Carolina this week with the announced assignment of joining U. S. fleet units in the Mediterranean. The Palestine government operates under British mandate, and the dispatch of Marines presumably would have British approval.)

Bradford Demands Truman Act As Oil Strike Perils Hospitals

In a telegraphic appeal to President Truman today to intervene in the Texas City refinery strike, Gov. Bradford declared that available fuel oil for many Massachusetts hospitals, schools, industries, apartment houses and thousands of dwellings would be exhausted in five days. Already, Somerville's 12 elementary schools faced closing at the end of the day's session while supplies of the Rutland Veterans' Hospital will be exhausted this week-end unless they can obtain additional oil, now tied up by the strike of Local 25 of the Teamsters' Union in Greater Boston.

Earlier in the afternoon, at the request of transportation company officials, Local 25 furnished a driver to take a tank truck loaded with fuel oil to the Rutland Hospital. Union officials said a police escort would be unnecessary but the company asked that it be provided.

Copies of Bradford's telegram to the President to intervene in the Texas walkout which has halted incoming shipments here were sent to Massachusetts Senators and Congressmen and the five other New England Governors.

"The fuel oil crisis in Massachusetts is growing more critical hourly," the telegram stated. "Unless oil shipments are resumed immediately from the Pan-American refinery at Texas City to the Chelsea terminal of the American Oil Co., fuel oil stocks there will be depleted in five days."

"Hospitals, schools, industries, apartment houses and thousands of dwellings face cessation of deliveries when stock at the terminal is exhausted. Other primary distributors unable to absorb these emergency daily deliveries, due to their own shortages."

NO TANKERS EN ROUTE

"Imperative that immediate action be taken to start tankers from Texas City to Boston. Understand $1,500,000 gallons available but cannot be loaded because of strike. No tankers now en route and transportation period required is six days."

"Even if immediate shipments started, stocks at terminal will be exhausted before replenishments arrive. Urgently request you bring official pressure to settle strike before Massachusetts emergency worsens."

Closing of the Somerville schools was predicted today by Building Comr. John F. Kennedy unless they could obtain supplies

Stassen Cites 4 Million Insider Profits

By FRANK B. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (INS)—Harold E. Stassen asserted today Edwin W. Pauley has made a million dollars in grain speculation since the war and linked Agriculture Secretary Anderson and former Postmaster General Hannegan to some of Pauley's success in the market.

The Republican presidential aspirant told the Senate appropriations committee that Administration insiders have gammed $20,000,000 in the food markets since 1940 and have profited by some $4,000,000.

He cited heavy transactions by Pauley last August at a time when Anderson and Hannegan were Pauley's guests at his luxurious estate on Coco Island, near Honolulu. Pauley became special assistant to Army Sec. Royall, Sept. 11.

Stassen said Pauley's August dealings were on radio or telephone orders from his private island, where he, Anderson and Hannegan were basking in Hawaiian sunshine.

The former Minnesota Governor charged that "insiders" took advantage of "apparently clumsy and inept" government purchases of commodities to reap rich profits.

Stassen accused Pauley of seeking to mislead the committee in connection with his commodity dealings. He asserted: "There was an inference he lost $100,000. The best of our information is that he made a profit of $1,000,000 in food commodity markets since the war."

Referring to government officials speculating in the commodity market, Stassen said: "It is our information that they have profited to the extent or in excess of $4,000,000."

Stassen added it also was his information that Ralph K. Davies, one-time deputy petroleum co-ordinator, and Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, President Truman's personal physician, also made profits in commodity dealings. He did not name the amount.

The ex-Governor appeared before the Senate committee as the first witness in its full dress inquiry into grain speculation by government officials.

He began his testimony without any prepared statement.

Stassen said: "On Aug. 12, 1947, Pauley bought 100,000 bushels of May wheat futures at $2.29 1/2 cents.

On Aug. 19, seven days later, he sold it at $2.34, taking a profit of $4100 . . .

"He immediately purchased, on Aug. 25, 400,000 pounds of hides for $59,000, and sold them Oct. 7 for $119,000 making a profit of $33,000 on a relatively small transaction."

"Pauley made about one million dollars in profits—with never a loss."

She Receives Death Sentence in California Murder. Hardy Faces Court Today for Trial Date

Sink Drain Strain on Louis As Finger Lingers Too Long

What to do about a kitchen sink that refused to part company with his finger was the problem perplexing Louis Hepler, 26, of Decatur st., Cambridge, a self-styled handyman, early today. And population had gotten into the act, including the entire Hepler family, neighbors, patrons of a nearby diner, casual passersby, male and female nurses, police and firemen.

Louis was in the kitchen and his mother, Bertha, 55, was long since in bed when he decided to fix the plugged-up drain of the sink.

His tools were scattered around the sink and one nut on the drain was loosened when Louis pushed the middle right finger down the drain to see if it was clear. The middle joint of the finger stuck tight in the drain.

AMBIDEXTROUS
Louis, who says he is equally dexterous with right and left hands, used the free left hand to loosen bolts under the drain and other bolts holding the sink to the wall.

Then he needed the water pipes shut off several feet from him, and it was necessary to awaken his mother. She obediently cut off the water and Louis was able to lift the 75-pound sink into his lap and try to work the finger loose.

He had no luck, so he decided to walk down the street with the sink on his shoulder and try to find someone who could release the finger.

A five-block stroll brought him to Green and Brookline sts. and under the watchful eye of Patrolman William Killian. The officer decided he and Louis should drop into a near-by diner and perhaps a night owl along the counter would have an idea.

WAGON RIDE
James Mack, a male nurse at Cambridge City Hospital, was in the diner and decided it was a job for the fire department. So Officer Killian summoned the wagon and all interested parties drove to fire headquarters.

Fireman George Thorpe looked over Louis and his sink, and seated Louis in one chair and propped the sink in another. He went to work with a chisel.

Louis' mother caught up with her son and sink at the fire station and was told he had no more pain in the finger—ever since the chisel slipped and the finger got numb.

She asked Louis if she should shut off the water for fear the pipes would freeze, and what was she going to do about a bathroom sink.

He told her he would straighten everything out as soon as he got home, and not to worry.

Then, one last rap by the chisel, the drain pipe snapped and Hepler was a free man again.

Then everybody and the sink got back into the patrol wagon and at Cambridge City Hospital Nurse Frances McMahon patched up the finger and gave the handyman a precautionary shot of antitetanus.

Louis walked out of the hospital with the 3-foot-long sink over his shoulder and announced he was going back home to put the sink back in operation.

Kiss-Lure Girl Killer Is 'Not Afraid to Die'

Special to the Boston Evening American
NEVADA CITY, Cal., Jan. 9—"I'm ready to die and I'm not afraid."

Lois Hunt Hardy, 22, weight 82, made this statement with a set smile today, adjusting the green bow in her blonde hair, shrugging her bony shoulders under her green knit sweater. The tiny New England girl of mysterious family background was sentenced yesterday to execution in the California gas chamber for the kiss-of-death murder of a motorist allegedly shot by her common-law husband, Joseph L. Hardy, Jr., of Kittery, Me.—a crime for which she acted as the lure.

Frozen Fingers Price of Soda Pop

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9 (AP)—Eight-year-old Donald Neil is nursing a couple of frostitened fingers today—all because of a bottle of soda pop.

The youngster stuck his hand through an opening in a dispensing machine at a church recreation center and then couldn't get his fingers out again. Police and firemen finally pried the metal top off the machine.

The boy's hand had been in the machine so long by that time, however, that its cooling device had nipped his fingers badly enough to require treatment at Germantown Hospital.

STILL LOVES JOE

Today she will be taken to the women's state prison at Tehachapi while Hardy appears in court to have his own trial date fixed. Lois was convicted by a jury which made no recommendation of mercy for her.

"I still love Joe and always will," she said, "but there isn't anything Joe or anybody else can do about it now."

"If the people of California want my life it is their responsibility. I knew when the trial was over what the penalty would be. I knew it meant my life. I cried a little but I said to myself, 'I'm not going to let anybody get me down.'"

"They treated me fine in the jail but I was never in jail before. I expect to know more about jail life before I die." (Ed. Note: Supreme Court review of her case before fixing a date for execution is expected to require six months.)

Lois is still standing by her trial story that James V. McLain, the murder victim, "got fresh" with her and that her memory

It Just Got Too Warm for Snow

It just got too warm for another blanket.

That was the weather bureau's nutshell explanation today of why Greater Boston missed a new six-inch snowfall headed this way from Central New York, which veered northward to Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

The storm-fringe hit the city about 4 a. m., and placed a thin white sheet on our already heavy bed of snow before rising temperatures and shifting winds kicked it off.

The weatherman forecast the rest of the day would be cloudy, with possibility of light snow or rain but no further accumulation.

Relatively warm weather today—highest around 38—will be followed by clear and cold tonight and fair and much colder tomorrow.

New Orleans Bank Holdup Nets $130,000

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 9 (AP)—Four pistol-armed robbers netted about $130,000 today in a day-light holdup of the mid-city branch of the Hibernia National Bank.

Vice-President and Cashier George W. Owen said the bank's loss, all covered by insurance, was in the neighborhood of $130,000. Earlier President A. P. Imahorn had estimated the loot at $114,000.

The unmasked bandits even took the small change from employees' pockets and purses.

A Negro porter was slugged unconscious with a pistol when he protested the treatment of a woman employee. The quartet entered the bank at 7:55 a. m., forced the assistant manager to open the vault which they looted, then calmly awaited the arrival of individual tellers so that they could take the contents of their money boxes as well. They herded some 25 employees into locker rooms.

The porter admitted the four while he was letting early customers into the bank.

The bandits escaped in an auto which, one witness said, bore a license plate which resembled those on state-owned cars.

Police said the porter was beaten by one of the bandits when he protested their "roughing up" one of the bank's women employees.

"You can't do that to her," he told the thug.

Street Snub Frees Beacon Hill Wife

When her husband left her in Halifax a month after their wedding in June, 1911, he made a promise not to recognize her on the street if she agreed not to recognize him, Mrs. Jennie May Newell of Myrtle st., Beacon Hill, told Judge Robert G. Wilson in Suffolk Probate Court today.

Three years later, she said, she met him on a Halifax street and he carried out his part of the bargain by staring at her blankly and passing by without a hint of recognition.

She was granted an uncontested divorce on grounds of desertion.

Lawyers, Police Accused In Kangaroo Court Probe

A large-scale investigation of an alleged "criminal syndicate," made up of runners, lawyers and police officers, who have been operating "corridor kangaroo courts" in the Boston Municipal Court, selling justice, has been under way for the past month under the direction of three judges and the Boston Bar Ass'n.

In charge of the investigation is a prominent lawyer in the criminal jurisprudence field who is a comparative unknown to Boston lawyers.

The first investigation of these practices was made under the direction of Deputy Supl. of Police James T. Sheehan and Sgt. Joseph Cunningham. Their lengthy report was turned over to Police Commr. Sullivan, but no action has been taken to date.

AFFIDAVITS OBTAINED

In charge of the private investigators assigned by the bar association is the former underworld man responsible for the groundwork of former Attorney-General Bushnell's action against gamblers.

The headquarters of the investigation is a hotel suite in downtown Boston.

Affidavits have already been obtained from defendants and witnesses implicating several lawyers on charges of conspiracy to defraud by means of false promises and threats.

The probe was launched at the insistence of the three judges, who received word that defendants were being told fees ranging from $1500 and up were necessary because "the judge had to be taken care of."

One woman from Worcester turned over a $1500 bankbook, her life savings, to the lawyer who promised to "cut it up" with the jurist. Her son was involved in a minor offense which brought a six-month suspended sentence and probation.

POLICE CHANGE TESTIMONY

Another matter under investigation is that of the strange way in which police testimony is changed between the lower court where the defendant is convicted of drunken driving and the superior court where he is acquitted.

One police officer, according to investigators, bragged how he began taking gratuities for changing his testimony in favor of defendants. It seems he was offered $400 and refused. In superior court he found his superior officer in the case testifying for the defendant. The police officer said he learned later the superior received the gratuity and the defendant was acquitted.

It was learned that the investigators were turned down flat when they asked Police Commissioner Sullivan for permission to discuss the investigation with Deputy Superintendent Sheehan and his squad. Under police regulations the commissioner must give sanction to men in the department to discuss cases.

Princess Anne On Way to Meet Michael

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 9 (INS)—Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma left today by train for an expected rendezvous with ex-king Michael of Romania to arrange plans for their marriage.

Princess Anne's father, Prince Rene of Bourbon-Parma, saw them off.

Princess Anne said:

"Upon my heart, I do not know where I am meeting Michael. He knows I am on this train and will contact me."

The North Express is due at Basle, Switzerland, Saturday night, and Reuter said Michael is expected to meet her there.

The princess was in high spirits. She said:

"Of course I am happy at leaving. Wouldn't you be?"

She was wearing a black fur coat and dark suit with mauve blouse.

The princess is a Roman Catholic and Michael is a communist of the Orthodox church. Asked about marriage arrangements, Princess Anne explained, "We will ask the Pope."

Princess Margrethe said she believed a definite wedding date would be set soon, explaining that Michael and Anne both want an early marriage and that "they have nothing to wait for. They are two young people in love."

Questioned about where the couple might live, she said:

"America has been mentioned, and I do not doubt it as a possibility."

Michael Defers Romance, Carol May Claim Throne

LAUSANNE, Jan. 9 (INS)—Former King Michael's romance with Princess Anne was thrust into the background today by political negotiations from which his father, Carol, may emerge as claimant to the Romanian throne.

The princess' hopes of seeing Michael soon appeared dashed when his aide-de-camp told International News Service Michael had no intention of seeing her in the immediate future, as he still is preoccupied with political problems connected with his abdication.

Michael has been in telephonic communication with his father in Lisbon and both father and son are understood to have taken the position that Communist-directed abolition of the monarchy and establishment of a republic in Romania are unconstitutional and invalid.

Carol contends he never actually abdicated, but merely turned over authority to his son in September, 1940.

Carol did not sign any act of abdication and therefore still considers himself the legitimate sovereign.

Josephus Daniels Reported 'Losing Ground'

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 9 (AP)—Physicians reported after a consultation today that Josephus Daniels had "lost some ground." The 85-year-old publisher of the News and Observer, and former cabinet member and diplomat, was being given oxygen to help him in breathing.

He was stricken with bronchitis early this week.

Who Got Clouted And Why at Club New Year Party

by STANLEY CHIPMAN

A gay echo of New Year's Eve at the Fox and Hounds, Beacon st., where her husband was brought to bay by a waitress, was described in municipal court today by Mrs.

Ruth C. Donahue, Vernon st., Brookline, who said she was beaten up by some beautifully dressed people, including a gentleman in tuxedo and a lady in leopard.

The lady in leopard kicked her in the ribs, said Mrs. Donahue. Another feminine celebrator yanked a handful of hair from her head, she said, while the tuxedoed man had the assistance of a man in a brown suit in alternately picking her up and knocking her down.

Her husband, John, meanwhile, was being held by a waitress, who was calming him with kisses that left lipstick imprints of her lips on his face, she testified.

SHE SLAPPED MY FACE

But for all that, Mrs. Donahue was not the complainant in the case; she was the defendant. The complainant was Jean Ippolito, a waitress, of Sanford st., West End, who charged Mrs. Donahue with assault and battery.

Miss Ippolito said about 3 a. m. she went hunting through the Fox and Hounds for Donahue to present him with a $10.00 check and finally ran him down near the Rhumba Room.

"He said all he had was five dollars and for me to see his wife," Miss Ippolito testified.

"Then," she added, "I heard someone running down the stairs and the next thing I knew she was right on me. She slapped my face and ran upstairs."

"Next," Miss Ippolito said, "we were at the top of the stairs and she hit me twice more. The whole lobby went in sparks. She also took off her shoe and hit me."

NEAR STEEPCHASE

Calmer heads were trying to keep the thing from developing into a steepchase, according to testimony volunteered by Miss Kay MacMillan, another waitress. She told Judge Charles L. Carr:

"I was going to go over but the headwaiter told me: 'No, don't do that, Miss Ippolito is only using diplomacy in trying to collect the check.'"

Miss MacMillan said, however, she distinctly heard Mrs. Donahue tell her husband:

"Why don't you let the waitress pay the check since she has been so intimate with you?"

As to that, it was testified by Donahue, he couldn't be of much help.

"I was a little foggy, although I had but a single drink at the place," he told the judge.

"I served them five rounds and there was an empty pint at their table, too," was Miss Ippolito's version of that point.

WHO ARE THE BOUNCERS?

Judge Carr said he was very much interested in hearing more about the gentlemen in tuxedo and his muscular friend in the brown suit who had, as Mrs. Donahue described it, given her a mauling. She said they tossed her into the checkroom before working her over.

The judge put the Fox and Hounds bartender, Harold Roomguiler, on the stand, and asked him:

"Here you, who are the bouncers at the Fox and Hounds?"

The bartender protested such persons were not necessary there. The judge said, "You wouldn't tell me anyway," dismissed him and called Patrolman Warren A. Blair, a former FBI agent, who had broken up the party.

"I want you to use your FBI training," he said. "I'm going to put this case over to Monday. I want you to go to the Fox and Hounds and see who the bouncers are. If there are any there, I want you to find the fellows in the tuxedo and the fellow in the brown suit."

"Surely," said the judge, "the fog couldn't have been so thick some people didn't see a few things. Bring in the whole Fox and Hounds."

"Yes, sir," said Patrolman Blair.

Youth, 17, Saved From Gallows Ninety Minutes Before Death

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Jan. 9 (AP)—An hour and a half before Joseph Maish, 17, was to die on the gallows of the Washington State Prison today, Gov. Mon C. Wallgren commuted his sentence to 99 years' life in prison.

Maish stabbed a high school girl to death at Vancouver a year ago.

The Governor had received many requests for executive clemency for the former Vancouver high school athlete. The state has never executed so young a person.

As late as last night, three of the jurors who convicted Maish of first degree murder recommended in wire to the Governor that he take such action.

Maish was convicted of stabbing Ladonna Toscas to death in the kitchen of a Vancouver home the night of Dec. 21, 1946. She had resisted his advances.

Word of the commutation was given to the frightened, half-sobbing youth by Warden Smith.

"The governor of the State of Washington," Smith began, "partly because of the demand made upon him by the public, and partly out of the goodness of his heart, has commuted your sentence to 99 years, instead of death."

With an impulsive gesture, Maish looked towards a window. He waved his hand, almost unconsciously, as if glad to know there would be an out-of-doors for him again.

Smith went on and told Maish he might never get out of prison and added:

"Living will impose a much greater responsibility than dying. But there are men here to help you."

"Thank you very, very much," Maish said. "I'll do my very best. I'll try. I'll try hard. I surely will."

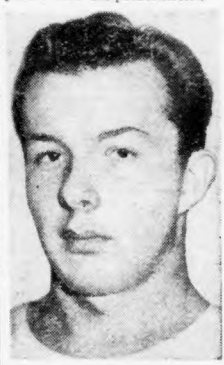

He broke down and began crying again.

The Governor issued a statement to newsmen terming the decision the "most difficult and heart rending one" he had ever made.

"I cannot believe that the best interests of society require the hanging of a child," the Governor said.

U. S. Supplies 4 Submarines To Turkey

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—

Four of the Navy's powerful fleet-type submarines are being supplied to Turkey as part of the United States program to strengthen that key middle eastern country against Soviet Russia.

The Navy made the announcement today. Rep. Vinson (D.) of Georgia later told reporters six submarines also would be transferred to Greece, where government forces are battling guerrillas along the borders of her northern, Communist neighbors.

Delivery of the 1500-ton undersea vessels to Turkey will be completed some time in April along with the transfer of eight motor mine sweepers, one net laying vessel, one gasoline tanker and one repair vessel.

This is the latest in a series of American moves to reinforce Greece and Turkey and generally bolster the position of the western powers in the Eastern Mediterranean, a target of Soviet interests.

The Navy has about 180 submarines in its operating and reserve fleets. Russia is reputed to have an even larger undersea force—possibly as many as 250.

In addition to the vessels for Turkey, the Navy announced that six motor gunboats have been handed over to Greece under the $300,000,000 Greek aid program.

Labor Backs Popular Demand For Split Tax Plan in Bay State

Labor is ready to urge the speedy passage of the community property tax reduction plan for the 1,300,000 taxpayers of Massachusetts.

A public hearing on the plan, submitted as a bill by Atty. Gen. Barnes, is scheduled to be held at 11 a. m., Monday in Room 249 of the State House.

Labor's attitude on the measure, which means a saving of more than $100,000,000 a year for at least 700,000 of the 1,300,000 taxpayers, was voiced by Jack Hurvich, public relations director for the Boston CIO Industrial Union Council.

Said Hurvich:

"Labor is interested in the community property tax reduction plan to the degree that it will aid those in the middle class group who have had no tax relief heretofore."

BACKED BY NOTABLES

His stand will be supported at the public hearing by scores of persons prominent in civic affairs.

Among them are Adelaide Fitzgerald, department secretary of the American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. Abraham Casson of the National Council of Jewish Women; members of the Boston Teachers Alliance and the Women's City Club.

Hurvich asked for favorable action by the legislature speedy enough to provide tax relief for residents before they must file their 1947 state income tax forms.

IN EFFECT ELSEWHERE

"The plan has been in operation in several states," he said, "giving tax relief to thousands of individuals."

"In all fairness to the citizens of Massachusetts, it should be enacted here."

The labor official went a step further. For those small taxpayers who might not benefit from the community tax plan he suggested an increase in state exemptions for incomes of less than $3000 a year. Those in the low income groups, he said, should be given exemptions up to $700 for each dependent.

Blue Cross Benefits Slash Proposal Draws Protests

Protests were voiced throughout the state today over announcement that a schedule of sharply reduced benefits is being contemplated for subscribers to the Massachusetts Blue Cross.

The objections are due to be aired when the altered rates are submitted to the State departments of Insurance and Public Welfare and discussed at public hearings before the State groups.

R. F. Cahalane, executive director, said Blue Cross directors have agreed to the new set up, which calls for payment by subscribers at the same rates for less benefits. The plan will also be submitted to participating hospitals for their approval.

One proposed change calls for a reduction from 120 days of hospitalization to either 30 days at full allowance or 90 days at one-half allowance. No decision has yet been made on this point. A fixed cash allowance will also be paid for hospital room and board, the sum to be something less than the present $28 a day. Also, one-half of X-ray charges will be paid by the Blue Cross instead of the full cost.

The new schedule includes payment, regardless of cost, of operating room charges, laboratory examinations, drugs and dressings, basal metabolism tests, electrocardiograms and physiotherapy.

Cahalane said the reason for cutting benefits is rising hospital costs, principally increases of 20 to 30 per cent in payrolls and food costs.

SOMERVILLE MOTHER, FAMILY OF 10 HUNT HOME AFTER FIRE

10 Following the fire which gutted her home in Oak st., Somerville, Mrs. Bridget O'Rourke was today faced with the problem of finding a home for her nine children and a grandchild. The family, forced to flee when flames from an overturned stove spread rapidly through the house, today was sheltered in the homes of relatives and friends in the neighborhood.

Hero of the fire was Margaret O'Rourke. As flames licked through the house, she rushed into a bedroom and picked up her 4-month-old niece, Patricia Ann Sterling, and carried her to safety.

Mrs. Sterling, sister of Margaret, discovering her child was safe, bravely attempted to fight the fire, and though she ultimately had to give up, she managed to save several household articles.

8-State Alarm For 2 Trucks Of Explosives

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (INS).—An eight-state alarm was broadcast today for two trucks, each carrying enough explosives to level a good-sized city, following seizure of 61 tons of an Army super-explosive.

The alarm was broadcast following the discovery early this morning of 25 tons of the explosive on a truck-trailer parked at Asbury Park, N. J.

Thursday afternoon 36 tons of the explosive were grabbed by New Jersey State Police while being unloaded at the farm of Charles Loewy, Asbury Park trucker, near the neighboring village of Glendale.

The 25-ton load was parked in front of Loewy's Asbury Park warehouse.

Monmouth County Prosecutor J. Victor Carton, who led the raid at the Loewy farm, said he was certain the new seizures tie in with a shipment of 32½ tons of Tel Aviv-bound TNT discovered Saturday as it was being loaded aboard a freighter in Jersey City.

EIGHT ARRESTED

Carton and FBI agents from Newark were questioning eight men arrested in the farm raid, including Loewy, when the second truck was found today.

The truck driver, Hubert Pond, 29, of Syracuse, denied knowing the contents of the truck, as had the driver of the other truck.

The explosives on both trucks were revealed by the Army's Picatinny Arsenal at Dover, N. J., to be cyclonite, developed during the war and approximately three times more powerful than TNT.

Carton said he was "almost certain" the cyclonite was destined for delivery to Hagana, Jewish resistance army in Palestine.

Nicaragua Canal Bill in House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9—Go-ahead legislation for the proposed construction of a supplemental canal across Nicaragua was introduced in the House today by Rep. Joe Hendricks (D.) of Florida.

The measure by Rep. Hendricks, member of the House Appropriations Committee, calls on the State Dept. to negotiate immediately with Nicaragua for the digging of the canal on the basis of an existing treaty.

Meanwhile, Sen. William Knowland (R.) of California, who has introduced Senate bills for building the Nicaraguan canal, held a lengthy discussion with the Nicaraguan ambassador.

NAMED MAYOR—Mrs. Dorothy Pugh, 31-year-old railroad clerk and mother of three children, who has been appointed Mayor of East Carondelet, Ill., her predecessor, George L. Reibling, quit because the job was "too much for one man."

12 Aid to Europe or Make U. S. Armed Camp, Douglas Warns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas told Senators today huge armament expenditures and high living costs may be the alternative if Congress fails to vote an adequate European recovery program.

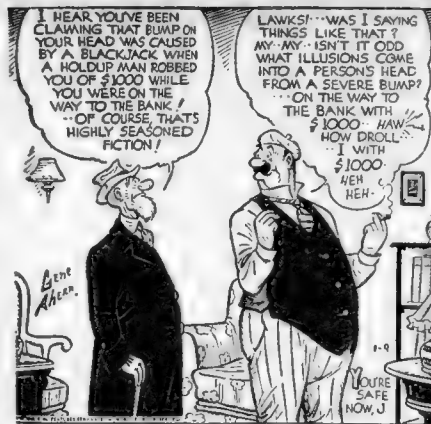

Testifying before the Senate foreign relations committee, the American ambassador to London said some critics have argued that spending $6,800,000,000 to help Europe in the next 15 months would have inflationary effects here at home.

If Congress provides no aid, or inadequate assistance, Douglas went on, the United States may have to become an "armed camp relatively isolated in the world."

He said the cost of armaments may be such as to have just as great an effect on living costs at home as would expenditures for foreign aid. He argued:

"We should calculate the cost of this program and its effect on the continued inflationary conditions at home against the calculated cost of doing nothing or doing something inadequate."

Douglas sat with Secretary Marshall yesterday when Marshall began presenting the Administration's case for its proposed four-year program of helping Europe. There are reports that Douglas may be assigned to administer the program if Congress votes for it.

Douglas told Senators unless aid is supplied "one of the most strategic parts of the world will fall under the domination of the police state."

He used a series of large charts in stressing the importance of the 16 western European nations, plus western Germany, in the modern world.

He said the aid area includes 12 per cent of the world's population, 26 per cent of its literates, 27 per cent of its output of industrial and agricultural products, 37 per cent of its steel, 68 per cent of its ship tonnage, 40 per cent of its chemical production, 24 per cent of its exports and 39 per cent of the imports.

Before the war, Douglas said, the area was "one of the most highly industrialized areas of the world, equal to ours and in some respects greater."

First It Was Flying Saucer Now It's Flaming Red Cone

WILMINGTON, O., Jan. 9 (INS)—Officers of the Clinton County Army air base have issued a formal statement revealing the presence of a flaming red cone trailing a green mist over Wilmington between 7:20 and 7:55 p. m. Wednesday.

The officers said they had no idea what the thing was but that Staff Sgt. Gale F. Walter and Cpl. James Hudson, control tower operators, spotted the gadget in the southwest and watched it until it disappeared over the horizon.

The Army stated the "phenomenon hung suspended in the air at intervals" then shot up and down "with what appeared to be tremendous bursts of speed."

The terrific brightness of the object pierced a heavy layer of clouds and blotted out the stars, the Army said.

This report jibed somewhat with that of a Kentucky state patrolman who said he spotted what looked like an ice cream cone about 100 feet long and 45 feet across the top, with a little fire at the bottom.

Other reports from various Kentucky points spurred Godman Field's commanding officer, Col. Guy Hix to send up three national guard reserve planes to observe what he said appeared to be a very white, motionless object about half the size of an ordinary saucer.

The pilot observers said by the time they found the cone - or saucer—it was travelling about 180 miles an hour.

Hurt in Fall From Train, Lynn Druggist Dies

Henry E. Dolan, 54, of Essex st., Lynn, died today in Lynn Hospital of injuries suffered Wednesday when he fell from a Boston-bound train as it pulled out of the Lynn station.

Police said he was seen boarding the train at 8:30 on his way to work in Boston. Three hours later he was found near an up-rail of the bridge over Central sq.

He suffered a fractured skull, a broken leg and deep cuts. He was well known as a druggist in Lynn where he worked for nearly 40 years.

FIRE TIES LAWRENCE MILL

LAWRENCE, Jan. 9 (AP)—Three thousand textile workers at the Pacific Mills were sent home today when a power failure, caused by fire, forced one plant to shut down.

21 Patients Saved In Bangor Blaze

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 9 (AP)—Fire swept through the Bangor City Farm Hospital early today but employees rolled 21 bed patients to safety through corridors to an adjoining wing of the four-story brick structure.

One farm employee was burned on the hands and a woman suffered lacerations. Two alarm were sounded.

Police Capt. Francis Duddy estimated the loss at $50,000.

Widow Jailed for Junior Love Nest

BAY CITY, Mich., Jan. 9 (AP)—A young widow was sentenced to 90 days in jail after police raided her home and testified in court it was a "love nest" for teen-age high school students.

Twenty teen-agers, ranging in age from 15 to 19, were rounded up for questioning in drinking and petting parties that allegedly took place in the four-room house of Mrs. Frances Feyok, 23, mother of five children.

Sentencing the widow on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors, Municipal Judge David R. Louis said:

"I am sorry the law restricts me to such a short sentence. This is the worst case I've ever heard of."

Mayor Plans Cash-Saving
South Bay Channel Dump

Mayor Curley announced today plans will be formulated next week to transform the South Bay channel, between Dover st. and Massachusetts ave., South End, into a huge dump, which he predicted would save the city from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 in refuse disposal costs for the next five to 10 years.

The mayor said the plans also would provide for the construction of an elevated highway over the channel route and extension of the present New Haven railroad tracks to Albany st., to increase property values there by more than $2,000,000. He made the announcement after approving a $324,000 contract for refuse disposal for 1948 to the Coleman Disposal Co.

Teacher, 6 Others Held as Burglars

AKRON, O., Jan. 9 (AP)—A 25-year-old high school English instructor and six other Akron men were held in city jail today on charges of burglary and larceny in connection with a series of local burglaries which netted $10,000 in loot.

Detective Capt. John Struzenski identified the teacher as Edward J. Phillips, instructor and athletic coach at nearby Macedonia High School.

Police arrested three of the gang in a north side cafe. The trio implicated two other men and Phillips in the robberies. Phillips was arrested at Macedonia High School. A search man was apprehended later.

Phillips faced a specific charge of burglary of the Akron Marine pal golf course last July. Police said Phillips admitted receiving equipment valued at $891 from the burglary, and quoted the teacher as saying:

"I was drunk that night and haven't taken a drink since. When I sobered up, I refused to take any of the equipment."

N. Y. Solon Would Ban Lone Women Drinkers

By MARJORIE FARNSWORTH

Special to the Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—A local law which would prohibit service to unescorted women at bars is being prepared by city council majority leader Sharkey and will be introduced soon.

Sharkey said his action had been motivated by disclosures in a survey by the N. Y. Journal-American showing the extent and result of public drinking by women.

The survey, which included talks with clergymen, judges, civic leaders, bartenders, police officials and others, showed that such drinking was a prime cause of lowered public morale and increased juvenile delinquency.

Acting on the suggestion of many of those interviewed that strong community action must be taken to stop the disgrace, Sharkey said:

"It is the responsibility of all lawmakers to consider the ultimate good of the community, and it is obvious that no good comes of unescorted women drinking at bars.

"I do not oppose drinking by women. The local law I propose to introduce would make it impossible for unescorted women to make spectacles of themselves.

"It would advance the decision of many of our bar owners to ban service to these women except at tables—a decision incidentally, taken by them almost entirely from the point of view of good business alone."

Sharkey said that before any vote on the measure would be taken by the council a public hearing would be held, giving opponents a chance to make their objections heard.

Controls of Meat Probable Sales Conference Told Here

Russia's "propaganda war" on the Marshall Plan is part of a strategic campaign by which the Communists hope to exploit disorder and conquer Europe, Under-Secretary of Commerce William C. Foster told delegates to the New England Sales Conference at the Hotel Statler.

To prevent success of the Russian plan, Foster said, America must be ready to accept sacrifices to help Europe get back on its feet. Envisioning heavy demands on our productivity to assure success of European recovery Foster declared that "if our meat situation becomes as now seems likely, controls in that area may be the intelligent action to take."

A similar statement was made several days ago by Secretary of Agriculture Clinton Anderson.

"A permanent decline in the buying power and productivity of Europe, he warned, would have the most serious repercussions on our own agriculture and industry. Without European recovery, he said, our trade with other areas of the world will suffer.

"Providing proper aid for Europe," the Commerce official said, "will have definite effects on our own economy and will, in turn, have a definite effect on our own productivity."

"It will require that we develop some effective means—voluntary or compulsory—for sharing the items most critically needed. The heaviest demands will be for wheat and steel, but many other items and activities will be involved."

He also told the conference that although 7,000,000 American are working in good wages and factories and business men are enjoying favorable prices, some of our imports have not kept pace with

Truman Gives USO 'Hail and Farewell'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—President Truman awarded an "honorable discharge" today to the United Service Organizations (USO), which for seven years provided entertainment and comfort for the U. S. armed forces and their allies.

The organization, representing the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, collected $36,721,295 in contributions from the time it went into action in February, 1941, through last month.

Take the problem of the plunging neckline—the problem being to keep it from plunging too far—vertically or horizontally.

It was solved here by George H. Willis in the middle of a domestic crisis involving his shapely brunette wife.

Mrs. W. bought a slinky silk dress with the plunging effect—and then found no local shops sold the required underthings.

Willis reached for adhesive tape and wire. The result was crude but satisfactory—resembling an outside pair of spring-clamp ear-muffs worn around the back and chest.

Now Willis finds the necessity that mothered his invention may bring him a pretty penny—a St. Louis corset firm wants to market his design.

$7428 Tax Bill On Stolen GemsDARTMOUTH, Jan. 9 (AP)—The Dartmouth local of assessors today sent a $7428 tax bill to Mr. and Mrs. Richard N. Coffin for $200,000 in jewelry reported stolen last Nov. 18 by three masked and armed men in a robbery at their palatial Misham Point mansion.

Although the jewelry has not been recovered, the assessors insisted that under the law it constituted taxable personal property last year, even though the assessors were unaware of its existence before the robbery.

Mrs. Coffin was known on the stage as Patrice Del Grande.

300 Arabs Battle British in Galilee

JERUSALEM, Jan. 9 (AP)—Jewish sources said British troops clashed today with 300 volunteers of an "Arab people's army" which crossed the border from Syria and attacked a Jewish settlement in upper Galilee.

Two settlers were injured in a two-hour battle with the Arabs in the first large attack by forces from across the Syrian frontier. New deaths by violence in the Holy Land brought to 643 the toll since partition.

In Jerusalem, British soldiers, behind police armored cars, took four truckloads of supplies into the old walled city, where 1500 Jews have been besieged by Arabs since New Year's Day. A Jewish leader had declared the beleaguered people inside the old city were "in danger of starvation."

Two Arabs and a British policeman were injured in an explosion of a crude shoebox bomb planted in an Arab bus in Jerusalem.

Vet Bureau Spends Nearly 8 Billion in Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 (AP)—The dizzy-spiraling expenditures of the Veterans' Administration reached a total of $7,805,335,001 during the fiscal year ended in 1947, more than 12 times the pre-war rate, Administrator Cary R. Gray, Jr. reported to Congress today.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their false teeth dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just apply a little FASTEREIN, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable, does not sour. Checks "plate odor," denture breath. Get FASTEREIN at any drug store.

Huge Waves Delay Russ Ship Rescue

TOKYO, Jan. 9 (AP)—The heavily-lifting Russian ship Dvina and its 780 passengers waited today for 50-foot waves to subside so rescue vessels can tow them to some northern Japan port.

The 7600-ton American-built ship had drifted about 50 miles from Thursday's position and was approximately 260 miles southeast of Hakodate, the nearest good northern port.

A Russian patrol boat succeeded in putting a line aboard the Dvina late today while seven other vessels stood by ready to lend a hand. Flying Fortresses flew overhead in relays.

Associated Press photographer Charles Gorry, aboard one of the planes, reported:

"We saw 40 or 50 passengers, all heavily clothed. None of them waved or gave any other sign of recognition as we circled over the ship."

Auto Thief Spoils Tuneup for Stork

For the past nine days Charles F. Leonard, of Gavin way, South Boston, has kept his auto fully gassed, key in the ignition switch, parked in front of his home expecting to use it in a race with the stork.

Today he awoke and discovered that during the night a car thief arrived instead and drove away with the auto.

He appealed to police for aid and issued a public plea to the thief to restore the car with no questions asked, explaining that the stork's arrival was expected at any moment.

Restraining Orders Still Stand in Auto Trade Suit

Temporary restraining orders issued in the $25,000 damage suit brought by a Berlin, N. H., auto dealer who charges he was deprived of a promised half-share in the distributing agency for the new Tucker car, were continued today in Suffolk Superior Court when two of the defendants failed to appear.

Edward J. Gaffney of Boston and Jeannette Dupont of Quincy failed to answer when called by the clerk.

Woman, Juveniles Held in Robbery

Mrs. Lucille Bean, 42, of Cherry st., Danvers, who allegedly sold three teen-agers on a life of crime, launched when they staged an armed robbery with her, was held in $7000 today in Salem district court, while her young co-defendants were held in $2000 each, all for a hearing Jan. 12.

Mrs. Bean and the young trio, one a 17-year-old Danvers girl, pleaded not guilty to armed robbery of $200 from Arthur W. Lawton 83, in the Pickering st., Danvers, house he occupies alone.

The boys, both 16, are sons of Peabody families.

Police told Judge George B. Sears the woman, girl and one of the boys invaded the aged man's home and the youth held a knife at his throat while the woman and girl rifled a bedroom drawer of the $200.

The youth described as the knife-carrier was arrested here when Detective William Condon picked him up in Remyre sq. Police said the woman had warned him and the others to "get out of town" but be prepared for another undertaking with her Saturday night.

These denials at Bern in News Agency, cited report of Stalin's death "newspapers" and Vladimir Pavlov, commander of the Soviet embassy in London, declared the reports were "obviously a slanderous and monstrous provocation." He added "I do not think it is true."

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, FRIDAY, JAN. 9, 1942

Too Late

A crane lifts a 2000-pound slab of concrete from the unconscious form of Daniel Sweeney, 43, in Roslyn Hts., New York, in a desperate effort to save the victim's life. He was crushed while digging a storm drain. Sweeney was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Impaled

Joseph Gondola, 15-year-old Paterson, N. J., polio victim, screams as a doctor attempts to free his hand from a spiked fence. Joseph, who wears braces, had slipped, reached for the fence and was caught. Emergency crew sawed off the spike. It was removed from his hand in hospital.

HOW WE SHALL KNOW WHO IS SINCERE

THERE HAS BEEN a lot of meaningless talk about tax reduction, probably because this is an election year.

Now, however, we are all going to find out which Senators and Representatives really want tax reduction and which ones are deceiving their constituents.

The opportunity to make this enlightening test comes next Monday at 11 o'clock in the morning when the legislative Committee on Legal Affairs will hold a public hearing in Room No. 219 at the State House on several petitions for a Community Property law.

That law will reduce the Federal income taxes of Massachusetts residents MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR.

It will accomplish tax reduction at the rate of $200 a minute, $12,000 an hour, $288,000 a day, $2,016,000 a week and more than $8,500,000 a month.

It will keep that much more wealth INSIDE MASSACHUSETTS and prevent the Federal Government from taking it OUT OF MASSACHUSETTS and spending it in States which are competing with our industries and destroying our jobs.

IT WILL IN all truth be the Massachusetts Legislature's ONLY CHANCE to give the people ANY KIND OF SUBSTANTIAL TAX REDUCTION this year.

So it is quite obvious that the Senator or Representative who goes to Room No. 219 at the State House Monday morning and calls for the immediate adoption of a Community Property law SINCERELY BELIEVES IN REDUCING TAXES.

And it is equally obvious that the Senator or Representative who stays away from Room No. 219 and shuns this ONLY CHANCE to come to the people's relief is not sufficiently interested in tax reduction to exert himself in favor of it.

He is liable to be the type of individual who says: "Let's wait and see what Congress does," not realizing or caring that the COST OF THE WAITING to the already-overburdened people of this Commonwealth will be nearly $300,000 A DAY.

The Senator or Representative who does not take the time and trouble to go to Room No. 219 at the State House Monday morning and support this $100,000,000 tax reduction program will have only himself to blame if he is labelled a CONTRIBUTOR TO INFLATION.

BY HIS ABSENCE AND DO-NOTHING POLICY HE WILL HAVE RISKED THE DEFEAT OF THE COMMUNITY PROPERTY LAW AND AUTOMATICALLY ADDED THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS A DAY AND TWO MILLION DOLLARS A WEEK TO THE COST OF LIVING IN MASSACHUSETTS.

And if he continues to prate about tax reduction, he should not be surprised if his constituents laugh in his face, since he threw away the ONLY OPPORTUNITY to give the people the benefits of the greatest tax reducing measure ever considered on Beacon Hill.

IN VIEW of the extraordinary importance of next Monday's hearing in Room No. 219 at the State House, we have this word of advice to the taxpayers of this Commonwealth:

Go in person to Room No. 219 or, if your job or household duties to keep you away, WATCH THIS AND OTHER NEWSPAPERS FOR THE FULL STORY OF THE HEARING ON THIS URGENTLY ESSENTIAL TAX REDUCTION.

Find out for yourself whether your Senator, Representative, Mayor or other official really believes in reducing taxes ONE HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR and in lowering the cost of living by that tremendous sum.

If your Senator, Representative, Mayor or other official ignores the hearing, it is a reasonably safe bet that he is not particularly disturbed by the fact that the lack of a State Community Property law saddles the people of Massachusetts with a NEED-LESS and AVOIDABLE tax bill of $300,000 a day and $8,500,000 a month.

Love is like the rose:
So sweet
That one always tries to gather it
In spite of the thorns.
—BAILEY

THE ABOVE is quite a touching description of that thing called love. But, of course, other men have other views. As, for example, James Hogg, who said: "O Love, Love, Love! Love is like a dizziness. It will not let a man go about his business."

THE STAGE and screen character appealing to me most is the suave, soft-spoken detective who, in impeccable English, and not without some show of humor, cross-questions a suspect. Of course, I like the suspect to be a very smart fellow, too. When two such characters engage in a duel of wits I am at the peak of my enjoyment of things theatrical. My favorite stage and screen detective has been Sir Cedric Hardwicke. But now it is Vladimir Sokoloff. One of the world's most capable actors, Mr. Sokoloff is at his best in the current stage production, "Crime and Punishment."

Sir Cedric Hardwicke

PLEASE NOTE: Lillian Gish, whom I first saw some 33 years ago in D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation," has a featured role in "Crime and Punishment." Miss Gish has reversed the usual procedure. She had her first great success as a film star in Hollywood, but is concluding her career as a legitimate stage actress on Broadway. Incidentally, the role Lillian plays bears quite a resemblance to that of the leading characters of Mr. T. Williams' plays, "The Glass Menagerie" and "A Streetcar Named Desire." The background of "Crime and Punishment" is also much like that of those plays. Evidently Chekhov is not the only Russian author who influenced young Mr. Williams. It appears he also may have admired Dostoevski. Not a bad idea at that. Keep it in mind, young fellow, if you are thinking of writing a play.

WHISTLE: Among my Christmas gifts was an elegant gold whistle to use in calling taxicabs. Just what I needed. A number of times recently I have been beaten to taxicabs by apartment house and hotel doormen who have whistles. I am already nearly the champion taxicab getter in New York. Yes, sir, I acquired a taxicab in three minutes after leaving the theater during a blizzard. With the help of this whistle I hope to break all existing taxicab-getting records.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q—So you're a young Old-Timer. Remember Robert Hilliard in "The Littlest Girl"? A—That's an Old-Timer's memory. Have heard of the sketch but never saw it. I never saw Joseph Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle" either. Or Denman Thompson in "The Old Homestead." Q—Didn't you say your folks once entered you in the Asbury Park, N. J., baby parade? Y—Yes, ma'am. I was unplace.

PASSING BY: Marcella Portier, half-pint size vaudeville and film actress. Marcella, who is four feet one inch in height, just married Bobby Brower, who is four feet eight inches in height. Do you know of a smaller married pair, exclusive of midgets? Marcella and Bobby will probably have a couple of six-foot-tall sons.

SIDELIGHTS: Irish stew originated in Germany. So claims a collector of fancy facts. I'll have to check on that. I have never been able to confirm this same man's claim that spawnt originated in China. . . . Who is the world's oldest actress? How about the British actress, Helen Creswell, who is 132 years old? Helen made her first bit as the star of "Lady Audley's Secret" in 1863.

OSLO DIET: Are you familiar with the Oslo diet for children? If not, and you have some youngsters look it up. In Brisbane, Australia, there is a child parking place for shoppers. Parked children receive unusual care. They are given an "Oslo diet" lunch consisting of lettuce, cheese, tomato, egg, carrot, bread and butter, honey and milk.

ASIDES: Bartenders in Reno, Nev., earn $15 per day plus tips. But the tips are reported getting smaller and smaller in Nevada. . . . Remember when sarsaparilla was a popular drink? If not, I demand your resignation from the Young Old-Timers. Well, anyway, sarsaparilla is reported about to do a comeback. The claim is it makes people feel younger.

COUSINS: Am asked about the wisdom of marriages of first cousins. Al I know is it is said the marriage of cousins intensifies whatever traits are present in the common ancestry. As you know, Franklin D. Roosevelt and his wife Eleanor were fifth cousins.

FAIR ENOUGH

THE CASE of the Immigration and Naturalization Service against Isidore Lipschutz, a Belgian immigrant charged with moral unfitness for American citizenship, was stated to Judge Edward A. Conger of the United States Court in Manhattan on June 27, 1947, by Mario T. Noto.

Westbrook Pegler

Mr. Noto is an examiner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service who soldiered in the American Army in Europe, volunteered for extra hazardous duty, and is personally jealous of the privilege of American citizenship lest it be erroneously granted.

Mr. Noto's evidence that Lipschutz had an affair with a woman whose husband is in Belgium, consisted of an opinion by the Immigration Service, based on sworn statements by witnesses.

AGAINST THE ALLEGATION of adultery, the court heard evidence that an agent of the Immigration Service had tried to shake down Lipschutz by framing up the adultery case against him in collusion with members of the woman's family, including her children.

To discredit one of the children, it was alleged that he was erratic or worse in his judgment. Several political witnesses testified for Lipschutz and their statements will be considered later.

On the subject of the alleged frame-up against Lipschutz, the fact may be kept in mind that he was an indefatigable worker in an espionage outfit called the Non-Sectarian Anti-Nazi League.

He was the treasurer and principal contributor to its stealthy work among unsuspecting American citizens while he was still an alien under ominous charges.

He had at his command a secret service which itself had the skill and the personnel of a private detective agency, although it had no license to operate as such.

RICHARD ROLLINS, formerly Isidore Rothberg, sometimes known as Colonel Rollins, in the index of his book about his activities for the Anti-Nazi League, refers to the League's "Department of Investigation." He also wrote that when he was engaged in February, 1939, to run this department for the League, "money and power" were the great need.

Lipschutz, a rich diamond merchant of mysterious background and a subject of inquiry by two of our Congressional committees, had the money.

Rollins, having boasted that he pulled the desk of a man who had engaged him in good faith and had stolen his private letters and other property, then says that he was hired with absolute freedom to run this private outfit as he saw fit. The ethics of the secret service body at Mr. Lipschutz's disposal are suggested by the proud statement of Rollins, or Rothberg, on Page 119, that he deliberately tried to start a whispering campaign. Rothberg regarded such a campaign as a legitimate "educational" work.

THE AUTHOR DAMNS Martin Dies, then chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, for "wasting time and money chasing the Communists."

To explain his own indifference and the apathy of the Lipschutz organization toward the Communist treachery, recently revealed in disturbing detail, he says he thinks the Communist traitors were not dangerous. Then he adds the puzzling thought that Mr. Dies had covered the Communist activities in that chase which he already has ridiculed as a waste of time and money.

If the charges against Lipschutz and the woman had been true, these two immigrants must have been undesirable persons under the Immigration and Naturalization laws. The burden of proof was on Lipschutz. Judge Conger decided that he had proved good character.

BUT THIS is a celebrated case. Two committees of Congress investigated Lipschutz and his Society for the Prevention of World War III, which advocates a policy more or less consistent with the Soviet program for Western Germany.

The Senate Committee on War Expenditures scrutinized the society carefully. The fact was noted that many of Lipschutz's directors and his advisory council were listed in the reports of the old Dies Committee and the present, permanent Thomas Committee on Un-American Activities. The Thomas Committee also investigated the society with about the same results.

Judge Conger gets $15,000 a year to dispense justice and, in important, strongly controversial cases, to write careful opinions.

A reading of the record in this case does not justify his statement that it would "serve no useful purpose" to write a detailed opinion.

I can see where he might have made a superficial argument in favor of Lipschutz but I would undertake to demolish it with the government's evidence.

"Why aren't OTHER men bothered by water dripping down THEIR necks?"

Simmons found a sack with three pairs of bowling shoes still in it, half buried in a snowbank. Near by were dog tracks, and thereafter Simmons spotted a setter who had found the sack of shoes and nightly deposited a pair with Williams.

Abiding by their decision to handle business with all promptitude, the Legislature wasted no time in dealing with the proposed bill which will become effective immediately it is signed.

Democratic members, however, criticized the Republican leadership at the State House for failure to hold the House in session so that the bill could have become law last night.

They said the delay might be seized upon by landlords who might rush to obtain court orders to oust tenants before the new law becomes effective.

The new law will give a district court judge the right to allow a tenant threatened with eviction one year to find somewhere else to live. Under the present law, four months is the maximum allowance.

In the Senate the measure was amended on motion of Sen. Chester A. Dolan, Boston Democratic floor leader, making a landlord guilty of contempt of court if he misrepresents to the court that he intends to use premises in eviction proceedings for his own use and fails to do so.

The bill was further amended on motion of Sen. Charles J. Innis of Boston, Republican floor leader, by striking out the words, "and who fails to use said premises." He pointed out an owner might find himself in a position where he might not be able to occupy the premises after obtaining the eviction of a tenant.

At the same time the mayor's committee on rent and housing reported that more than 1000 Boston families have been ordered evicted in court proceedings during three-and-one-half months ending Dec. 14.

Smart Set Sisters to Wed

By BETTY ALDEN

WITH THE WEDDINGS of her two pretty and popular daughters coming within three weeks of one another, Mrs. John Perrin of Chestnut Hill has more wedding notes on her cuff than a society editor.

Joan Perrin relax and take a long vacation after planning all the details of a single wedding but Mrs. Perrin is taking two in her stride and probably will find the second a cinch after everything is in readiness for the first.

Both her daughters are members of the Junior League and Vincent Club and have been very active in volunteer social service. In addition to hospital and Red Cross work Joan graduated from the Boston School of Occupational Therapy last month. Patsy made her debut last year.

Patsy Perrin

served as a junior courier for the Frontier Nursing Service in the Kentucky mountains and was chairman of Junior League provisional members.

SPEAKING of future brides, post-deb Ginny Palfrey's portrait will appear in a full page diamond advertisement in the early spring magazines. She was selected as the Boston society girl to pose for the series of interesting portraits of engaged girls painted by the world's top artists.

Her portrait was done by Brockhurst in New York at the same time he was working on a portrait of General Arnold and putting the finishing touches on one of Marlene Dietrich. Ginny got more kick out of posing for a famous artist than most society girls for she is an artist herself and winner of several prizes in Junior League exhibitions.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis W. Palfrey of Boston and engaged to Andrew Alexander Zausmicki of New York and Harvard, godson of the late Ignace Paderewski, world famous pianist.

A COLOR moving picture of beautiful New England scenes will be shown at the meeting of the Warren and Prescott Chapter, D. A. R., next Monday at the Women's Republican Club at 3 o'clock. Also on the program will be a talk on highlights of the 58th Continental Congress by Rutherford Bingham, regent of the chapter, who was a delegate to the Congress in Washington.

Hostesses for the tea will be Mrs. Joseph C. Howes, Mrs. Charles Gaston Smith and Miss Eleanor Jones. Among the many planning to attend are Mrs. Allan Priddy, Mrs. Robert G. Valentine, Miss Mary E. Forbes, Mrs. Henry H. Freeman, Mrs. Robert C. Vose, Mrs. Henry L. Houghton, Mrs. Charles J. Green, Mrs. A. Marshall Jones, Mrs. G. Loring Briggs, Miss Marion Cushing Elliot, Miss Sarah L. Guild, Mrs. Charles Townsend and Miss Marguerite A. Whitcomb.

BOSTONIANS PROMINENT in the fine arts world are invited to an exhibition of mural designs and scenic wallpaper by Arthur L. Finney at his studio on Newbury st. from 4 to 6 during the week of Jan. 12-16. Hostesses for the tea and sherry hours will be Miss Amy Sacker, Mrs. Daniel Comstock, Mrs. Harold D. Walker, Mrs. James Lawrence, Jr., Mrs. William G. Constable, Miss Rosamond Higgins and Mrs. Hasket Derby.

Strike Aggravates Fuel Oil Shortage

New crisis adds to already desperate situation

The battle to beat the fuel oil emergency, being fought by government and industry alike, has been dealt a body blow by a strike in our Texas City Refinery.

This refinery is a big producer. Among other vital oil products, it makes millions of gallons of fuel oil. Enough to heat hundreds of thousands of homes daily, in addition to hundreds of schools and hospitals.

Subtract this production from the total gallonage the Eastern Seaboard is counting on to squeeze through the winter . . . and you imperil the health and comfort of many thousands of men, women and children in thousands of homes. Hospitals, schools and vital industries will also be seriously affected.

As storage tanks run dry, our customers have nowhere to turn for their needs. Other companies, desperately trying to supply their own customers, can't help them since there already exists an estimated 15% shortage in home heating oils in the East.

Here are the plain facts:

1. The fuel oil supply of the American Oil Company is dependent on the continued operation of the refinery at Texas City, Texas, owned and operated by an affiliated company, Pan American Refining Corporation.

2. Our Texas City Refinery was closed by a strike called New Year's Day by the CIO Oil Workers Union. As a result 2½ million gallons of fuel oil per day is being denied the East Coast.

3. The Union refuses to call the men back to work, although the only difference is the wage issue. The Company has offered a higher wage settlement than any other major oil company, and higher than the settlement made recently by the same Union with other major refineries.

4. A Company offer that the men come back to work on a short-term basis to produce critical fuel oil was rejected by the Union, even though the wage rate during the short-term would be the high rate referred to above.

Each day this strike continues, a very serious situation is further aggravated. The American Oil Company is continuing its efforts to have the refinery back in operation at the earliest possible date. Unless the Union recognizes its responsibility to the public, elects not to capitalize on the emergency and returns to work, this Company will not be able to contribute its large share of fuel oil to this and many other communities.

If the strike is allowed to continue, an already very serious situation could assume calamitous proportions for many thousands of people.

We have a responsibility to the public—and believe you should know the facts.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

ON APRIL 6, 1927, Chinese police and troops, armed with a warrant countersigned by the dean of the diplomatic corps in Peking, raided the compound lying to the west of the Soviet embassy. In the buildings of this compound, they found certain very interesting documents, some of which are pertinent to present problems.

Among them were a few relating to Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, who is now in the United States at taking his own government and strengthening public support for the Chinese Communists. I give these documents as they appear in the China Year Book for 1928.

JOHN E. CANN CO., Manufacturers, Cambridge, Mass.

"Feng Yu-Hsiang's receipts: A certified copy of the obligation signed by Feng Yu-Hsiang in 1926 while in Moscow. This copy was on file in the office of the Soviet military attaché in Peking."

OBLIGATION
"I, Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, undertake hereby a solemn obligation before the government of the U.S.S.R. that for all military as well as all other supplies whatever they may consist of, which I have received from the government of the U.S.S.R. or its organs, I pledge myself to compensate their value to the government of the U.S.S.R. at its first demand and in the manner prescribed by the government of the U.S.S.R."

"By the supplies mentioned in the present obligation I understand the supplies received by me personally in the capacity of the commander-in-chief of the Kuomintang as well as the supplies received by the commanders or duly authorized officers of the individual national armies."

"As acknowledgment of the present obligation I set my hand and seal thereto."
Moscow
August 1926.

Translator's note:
"Under the above obligation the following pledge (in Chinese) has been given by Feng Yu-Hsiang:
"I hereby undertake the obligation and give my assurance that for all military and other supplies received by me in the capacity of the commander-in-chief of the Independent National Armies from the government of the U. S. S. R. I am obligated to repay their value to the government of the U. S. S. R. which I certify by my signature."

"A certified copy of a receipt which was on file in the office of the Soviet military attaché in Peking. It is for the amount of roubles 6,395,642, signed by Feng Yu-Hsiang while in Moscow in 1926. Attached thereto is a list of arms and munitions covering that amount. The copy is certified by Rogatcheff, who in September 1926 came as assistant military attaché to the Soviet embassy in Peking."

RECEIPT
"The present receipt is given to the government of the U.S.S.R. in token that, in accordance with the obligation entered into by me, I have received supplies to the amount of 6,395,642 roubles, according to the list attached thereto (August, 1926, Moscow).
Roubles 6,395,642.
"I have received the supplies in accordance with the list which I certify hereby."

Two lists appear, one in the amount of roubles 6,395,642.31 and another roubles 4,561,999.15. I cite these documents because the attempt is being made to paint Marshal Feng as a hero who objects to killing Chinese when, as a matter of fact, he has been engaged in doing precisely that ever since he reached power. When Soviet Russia protested these raids, the Chinese ministry of foreign affairs on April 16, 1927, said in a note:
"The raid resulted in the arrest of important members of the Revolutionary party and the discovery of banners to be used by the Revolutionaries in an uprising, seals, rosters and other incriminating evidences and documents. Besides, there were discovered large quantities of arms and munitions, such as machine-guns, rifles and cartridges and documentary evidence of communications between the Soviet government and the Revolutionary party."
"All these were found either in premises directly under the control of the Soviet embassy or in offices intimately connected with the embassy. How can the Soviet embassy deny its responsibility for harboring and assisting the Revolutionaries in conspiring to disturb and (sic) peace and overthrow the government to which it is accredited? ... now tied up in Dorchester by the truck strike.

State Fuel Co-ordinator George J. Rockwell said he had been informed by American Oil Co. officials that 31,500,000 gallons were now available for shipment to Boston from Texas City if the strike could be settled. Numerous hospitals and schools will be forced to close, he said, unless shipments resumed at once.

Veterans' Administration officials complained the Rutland Veterans' Hospital, caring for more than 500 tubercular patients, faced the end of its dangerously low supplies this week-end unless shipments could be obtained.

Rockwell said that hospitals which would be affected by the shortage included the Boston City, Chelsea Naval, Brighton Marine, New England Deaconess, New England Baptist, Beth Israel, Carney, Melzer, Lawrence General, Lyman and Danvers State Hospitals.

In addition 15 Boston public schools and 11 industrial plants in the area would be tied up, he said.

Abp. Cushing also wrote to all pastors of the archdiocese today, urging them to inform their parishioners Sunday of the need for conservation.

The Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross was mobilizing workers and preparing a chain of emergency shelters in 35 Greater Boston cities and towns for use in case of a fuel oil emergency. Shelters would be set up in public buildings, Red Cross chapters, schools, churches and welfare buildings to care for families affected by the shortage.

Striking pickets, in defiance of Gov. Bradford's order for a halt to disorder and interference with lawful use of the highways, attacked a union driver from Vermont in Dedham early today and beat him severely.

The driver, Gerald Beckley, 23, of South Redgate, Vt., was returning to Vermont from Providence after delivering a load of milk. Halted in Dedham, he was pulled roughly from the cab by the roving pickets.

Despite the fact that he showed them his transfer papers, approved by the union, and his membership in Local 14, of the Manchester, N. H. Teamsters' Union, he was beaten savagely and left dazed and bleeding. The assailants fled after disconnecting the trailer coupling and air hose and ditching his trailer.

These developments came in the wake of Gov. Bradford's severe castigation of leaders of the opposing factions in the strike at his office last night and his demand that they each submit a proposal to arbitrate all issues by next Tuesday.

age. Inside at work were Don Courtney, Medford, Miss Georgia Trebas, Cambridge, and Miss Estelle Sutherland, Commonwealth ave., Allston.

These three were almost unaware of the stock man's presence when he grabbed the bag and began his football-style getaway. When he reached the center of the store, his two accomplices rushed to his side and the three fled to the Palmer st. exit, where they escaped in a car at which a fourth man was waiting at the wheel.

Patrolmen John Murphy and John Riley were nearby at Church st. and Massachusetts ave. when they noticed a car, which they learned later was the bandits' getaway sedan, speeding through traffic. Riley jotted down the registration number. Registry officials reported that the number plate had been stolen two days ago in Worcester.

The only display of a gun in the entire holdup was reported by a Harvard student, James Harper of Eliot House, who chased the bandits along the sidewalk after they fled the store. He reported one of them had a revolver as the trio headed for their waiting auto. An attractive 21-year-old Radcliffe student unwittingly allowed the perfectly executed smoke-bomb holdup. She is Mrs. M. L. Fowler, a senior, whose husband, David, is a Harvard law student.

Mrs. Fowler was in the doorway when the gang came charging out. She stood for a moment not moving to either side. Finally, one of them gave her a push to one side, making her way to the street.

The Coop occupies a three-story building in the very heart of the Square, directly across from the subway entrance and just outside the entrance to the Harvard Yard.

The three holdup men made a casual entrance into the Coop, witnesses reported, making inquiries about merchandise. They separated as they sauntered along until, almost without warning the Coop was thrown into confusion by the smoke bombs.

Except for a description of the cash-grabbing bandit as "short, mustachioed, pocked - marked man," and meager descriptions of he other two "tall and wearing light topsats," the holdup gang appeared to have made good their getaway leaving scant clues behind for police.

OBLIGATION

"I, Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, undertake hereby a solemn obligation before the government of the U.S.S.R. that for all military as well as all other supplies whatever they may consist of, which I have received from the government of the U.S.S.R. or its organs, I pledge myself to compensate their value to the government of the U.S.S.R. at its first demand and in the manner prescribed by the government of the U.S.S.R.

"By the supplies mentioned in the present obligation I understand the supplies received by me personally in the capacity of the commander-in-chief of the Kuomintang as well as the supplies received by the commanders or duly authorized officers of the individual national armies.

"As acknowledgment of the present obligation I set my hand and seal thereto.

S. S. R. I am obligated to repay their value to the government of the U. S. S. R. which I certify by my signature.

Attached thereto is a list of arms and munitions covering that amount. The copy is certified by Rogatcheff, who in September, 1926, came as assistant military attaché to the Soviet embassy in Peking.

Two lists appear, one in the amount of roubles 6,395,642.31 and another roubles 4,501,993.15. I cite these documents because the attempt is being made to paint Marshal Feng as a hero who objects to killing Chinese when, as a matter of fact, he has been engaged in doing precisely that ever since he reached power. When Soviet Russia protested these raids, the Chinese ministry of foreign affairs on April 16, 1927, said in a note:

"... The raid resulted in the arrest of important members of the Revolutionary party and the discovery of banners to be used by the Revolutionaries in an uprising, seals, rosters and other incriminating evidences and documents. Besides, there were discovered large quantities of arms and munitions, such as machine-guns, rifles and cartridges and documentary evidence of communications between the Soviet government and the Revolutionary party.

"All these were found either in premises directly under the control of the Soviet embassy or in offices intimately connected with the embassy. How can the Soviet embassy deny its responsibility for harboring and assisting the Revolutionaries in conspiring to disturb and (sic) peace and overthrow the government to which it is accredited?"

LET US SAY RIGHT HERE and now... for once and all time... that WATER, WATER, WATER is an integral part of every one's diet. However, the dieter... aiming to take off unwanted weight... should drink the clear, cool aqua pura

BETWEEN meals and AVOID large amounts of water with meals. We've stipulated that in earlier diet columns but somehow this tidbit of advice must have been overlooked for letters keep coming asking what provisions are to be made for water. So let's say it again as we've said before. Remember to drink PLENTY of water between meals... at least, one to three glasses of water between meals or about six to eight glasses daily. The kidneys need such attention.

We make this specification not because water can make you fat. Far from it. But drinking large quantities of fluids with meals has a tendency to increase the size of the stomach. And you know what happens to the appetite when that happens!

YOU EAT LESS

How are you feeling? Are you beginning to appreciate the well-known fact that you can eat less if they are the right foods and be perfectly satisfied? And are your hands beginning to gravitate to the wastebasket for a smooth caress and stroking of the area that projects a new feeling of slimmness, however slight?

We all know it is easy to start a diet... and how much easier it is to toss it into the discard. But just remember that it is the continuation of the calorie subtraction and the well-proportioned distribution of food necessities which make the weight reduction a gradual, progressive chart of achievement.

You need everything this diet offers. Nothing should be omitted. Every day, we should eat this way. Menus must include milk and milk products... oranges, tomatoes, grapefruit or raw cabbage or salad greens (at least one of these)... green or yellow vegetables (some raw, some cooked)... bread (cut to a minimum in dieting)... meat, poultry or fish (some of one each day)... eggs (at least three or four a week, cooked any way you choose or in 'made' dishes)... butter.

NO SWEETS, STARCHES

When one isn't trying to lose weight other foods that are liked may be eaten. But in a weight-reducing regime... the sweets and starches... are purposely omitted... and for the obvious reason. And naturally, servings are not repeated.

There is Vitamin A in milk and butter, Vitamin B1 and roughage and minerals in bread and cereals, Vitamin C in fruits and vegetables... all of which are essential to energy and good health. Present in such proteins as meat, fowl or fish or their substitutes, eggs and cheese, are the essentials for the body which produce growth and repair tissue.

This 28 day NEW LOOK DIET... a gradual figure slicer that pleases the medico's sense of sanity... is basically a 1000 to 1050 calorie diet. But just because we suggest a low-calorie diet for taking off weight doesn't mean you can utilize the daily calorie allowance in menus marked with sweets, fats and starches... and think it's serving the same purpose.

FOOD VALUE COUNTS

The healthful differential would suffer and you wouldn't lose weight anyway. It is not only the number of calories you take into the system that counts... but what those calories represent in food value and in the manner of body distribution.

So be wise! Be willing... and before long you'll notice an appreciable wilting of the desire for the unwholesome figure fancies. Be sure and supplement this NEW LOOK diet regime with a good brand of Vitamin B1 complexion capsule. Is every dieter happy?

In tomorrow's Boston American, we'll disclose a few dieting tricks and dig into the mail bag and answer inquiries of general and pertinent interest to our dieting readers.

SWEET and lovely... and youthful, to boot... is Radio Actress Jan Ford, so typically Young American with the kind of vibrant beauty coveted by every mother AND her daughter. Clear eyes, a bright smile, a faceful of features endowed by a kindly Nature are bounty enough... but lovely Jan has a wonderful complexion to make the illusion of loveliness a reality.

This Creamy Liquid Puts Fresh Beauty in Cheeks

THERE'S NO MYSTERY in looking lovely. More girls should realize that fact. There's no hokus pokus connected with enhancing the personality rating... unless it be the intuitive understanding of the value of feminine appeal. Some girls may have more "savvy" about glamorizing themselves than others. But the art is a lesson that can be learned.

For beauty is basic. And there isn't a girl in the world who can't recognize it... in herself as in others. It is just as apparent as good breeding... always an obvious and distinctive manifestation of the girl with poise, good manners, a softly modulated voice.

The girl with an air about her is the girl who gets the plaudits... and the pals. America's young women... for the most part... have that air... That smart nonchalance of social security that comes with knowing one is well-groomed and well-dressed. Which doesn't mean expensively dressed. Which means dressed decorously... in good taste... and according to type.

So why, pray tell, do some girls refuse to let their complexions breathe? Why do they clutter it up and deny it the inner glow of radiant youth? Of course, if there is something to hide... then let's get to the bottom of it... remove the cause so that a blooming complexion can match the sharpness of the younger contingent's wit and witticisms!

In years we may not be as young as the girls we have in mind... but age doesn't stop us from treating our complexion to a detergent which puts apple beauty in our cheeks. And we've got several of the younger gals in the office using it too... for the facial glow that possesses.

An unusual preparation... it is neither soap nor cream but a liquid of creamy consistency which holds imprisoned in its compound the properties of both. A complexion scrubbed with this lathering lusciousness is one which is not denied its barrel of beauty. It spans the facial skin clean. It tones it to reborn freshness. It makes it feel oh so smooth and spring cool after it has been removed with oodles of tepid water followed by doses of cold. Mother and daughter would do well to share this bottle of imprisoned facial assurance. R. M.

'Hick' Way to Introduce Boy

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: What an argument my brothers and I had at... and we decided to come argument concerned the way I introduce my boy-friend. I have two brothers, one a senior in an eastern college, and the other in high school. At a party we all went to several days ago, I introduced my boy-friend, as I always do, as "my boy-friend." My brothers happened to be standing near, and heard me. Last evening they began to razz me and said that I was a "hick" to say "my boy-friend" when I introduced him, instead of saying his name.

My older brother said that neither he nor any of the fellows he knows introduce a girl as "my girl friend"; that if they are engaged to a girl they say "my fiancée," and if they aren't, they just say her name.

Are my parents and my brothers right about this, or am I?

CHRISTINE M.

you're right. But I honestly can't. Your parents and your brothers are right in saying: (1) that for a girl to introduce a boy as "my boy-friend" is "hick," and (2) that this form of introduction is a give-away that she has a proprietary attitude toward the young man.

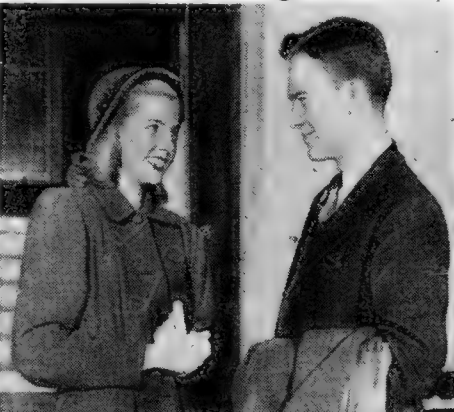

Since you say you haven't this, and if you don't want to seem to have it, throw this introduction-form into the discard, and at once. It's bad form, and it's bad business, too. For often, too often, a girl's introduction of a boy as "my boy-friend" scares him off from whatever degree of friendship there is!

If a girl is engaged to a man, she introduces him as "my fiancée," usually with the addition of his name. If she isn't engaged to him, she should introduce him by his name, as she does any other friend.

The Correct Thing

By ELINOR AMES

WHO SAYS "THANK YOU"? A girl should let her escort know that she enjoyed the evening, say she has had a good time, etc., but the actual "thank you for a lovely evening" should come from the man.

Let's Eat

BY IDA BAILEY ALLEN

TO MANY PEOPLE a goulash is a mystery dish, made of unknown ingredients cooked in a reddish liquid. But the original of this dish is quite different. A true Hungarian goulash or stew is carefully prepared and cooked, always seasoned with paprika and never soupy.

"Served with tiny dumplings or paprika potatoes, piping hot, in a brown casserole, it is a dish superb," said The Chef.

COMPANY MEAL

Another interesting service that I sometimes use for a company meal is on individual glass baking plates, or individual wooden planks. I put the goulash in the center, with cooked string beans on each side, and surround it with fluffy mashed potatoes, put on with a pastry tube and dusted with paprika; then to brown under the broiler and garnish with parsley.

"A very good way to make a less-demanded cut of meat look very important," observed the Chef.

VARIOUS MEATS

Hungarian goulash can be made of various kinds of meat. Stewing cuts of beef or veal are always good, or they may be used combined. Or lamb may be chosen. A good fat hen, or duck dissected as for fricassee, makes a superb goulash! So does young turkey cut in sections. But to be authentic, use tomato juice for the liquid, and plenty of paprika for seasoning.

"Paprika is very good," added the Chef. "It is not hot, but has the flavor delicate, and can be used generously."

BAKED LIMA BEAN SOUP

In a 2 qt. sauce pan combine 2 c. left-over baked lima beans, 1 1/2 c. solid canned tomatoes, 1 sliced peeled onion, 1 tsp. sugar and 5 c. soup stock or 3 bouillon cubes dissolved in 5 c. water. Cover and simmer until soft, about 30 min., or pressure cook 35 min. at 15 lbs. Add 3 tbsp. flour blended with 2 tbsp. butter, margarine or savory fat. Cook and stir until boiling. Then rub through a sieve. Serve with croutons.

Oven-Browned Croutons: These are made from stale bread or crusts cut from sandwiches. Cut in dice. Place in a pan generously rubbed with margarine and bake in a hot oven about 20 min. until browned.

HUNGARIAN GOULASH

Cut 1 1/2 lbs. lean beef or veal into 2-in. dice and brown in 3 tbsp. drippings. When half brown, add 1 sliced large peeled onion, two sections peeled sliced garlic, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. paprika and 1 c. tomato juice or 1/2 c. tomato paste and 3/4 c. water. Cover and simmer until the meat is tender, about 1 1/2 hours (or pressure cook 25 minutes.)

PAPRIKA POTATOES

Steam-boil or pressure cook well scrubbed white potatoes. Shake over the heat and dry them out. Peel and roll in melted margarine. Dust plentifully with paprika.

SWEET-SOUR CARROTS

Scrub and steam-boil or pressure cook a medium-sized bunch or 1 lb. of carrots. Peel, dice, shred or slice and heat in sweet-sour sauce.

Sweet-Sour Sauce: Combine 1/2 c. mild cider vinegar and a scant 1/2 c. sugar, and bring to boiling point. Stir in 1/2 tsp. cornstarch blended smooth with 1 tsp. cold water. Cook and stir 2 min. Add to the vegetable and let stand to season 5 min. in a warm place. Just before serving add 1/2 tsp. butter or margarine, and 1 tsp. minced parsley if desired.

Martha Lee's Daily Recipe

APPLE BROWN BETTY

- 2 cups bread crumbs
- 1/2 cup melted butter, margarine or suet oil
- 6 cups sliced, pared, cored apples (about 8 apples)
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar or brown sugar, firmly packed
- 1/2 tsp. nutmeg or mace
- 1/4 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 1/2 tsp. lemon juice
- 1 tbsp. grated lemon rind
- 1/4 cup water

Combine the bread crumbs and melted butter and arrange 1-3 of this mixture in the bottom of a greased or oiled 1 1/2-quart casserole. Cover with half the apples and half of the remaining ingredients, which have been combined. Cover with 1-3 of the crumbs, then the rest of the apples, and next the rest of the sugar mixture. Top with the rest of crumbs. Cover and bake in a moderately hot oven 375 deg. F. for 1 1/2 hours. Remove the cover and continue baking 1/2 hour longer or until apples are tender. Makes 6 servings. Serve warm with cream or hard sauce. White or whole-wheat bread crumbs may be used. 1/4 cup corn syrup may replace 1/4 cup sugar.

Peach Brown Betty: Make apple brown betty, substituting 6 cups sliced peaches for apples.

What Kind of Person Are You?

There are two kinds of people. (1) Those who endeavor themselves to givers-of-gifts by writing prompt and enthusiastic notes of appreciation. And (2), alas and black (and it is a "black") those non-endearing procrastinators who (a) either put off writing their thank-you notes so long that their words of thanks are almost lost in the deluge of excuses-for-the-day, or who (b) with a maddening casualness, lazily wait to thank for gifts until they chance to meet the givers.—MRS. BEECKMAN.

A Divorcee Speaks Up

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A FEW WEEKS ago a letter printed in this column from a married woman, complained of an unattached woman making a play for my correspondent's husband.

The writer of the letter found it hard to know which one to be most angry at—her husband, who was apparently flattered by this woman's attention, or the woman herself.

One of my readers who saw the letter and who has been turned into an "unattached woman" through divorce, felt that such things were very far from always being the fault of the single woman, and takes up the argument from that point of view.

She writes: "In your column you bring us the letter of a jealous wife who has a grudge at 'unattached women' as she calls us.

DIVORCEE PROBLEMS

"I happen to be a divorcee, in my home I live with my husband 17 years and have two children 16 and 11 years old. Now I have a chance to understand the unattached woman's view-point I work in a place where there are a lot of men and women, and where I live there are about 15 couples with whom I come in contact nearly every day. If any of the husbands so much as pay me a compliment on my appearance, or my ability to carry on and make a home for my children, their wives turn very cold shoulders to me, and even make cutting remarks.

"Now, Miss Fairfax, what is a woman in my shoes supposed to do? How are we going to make men friends? We can't go up to an unattached man and ask him for a date. All I want out of life is what I have always wanted; a home, a good husband that I can love and make a nice home for, and have him, his love, and my children in return. I certainly don't want anyone else's husband, either. How am I to find this love and home?"

This letter points up the fact that the unattached woman has two distinct problems: One is to keep on good terms with married women who are prepared to resent any slight attention their husbands may pay to her; and the second is to find a husband and home for herself and her children.

As for the other problem, it is a very real one, particularly in the case of a divorced woman. For some reason or other, a woman with a divorce is almost invariably supposed to be a designing creature with an eye for any man who crosses her path. She is apparently thought of as extremely sophisticated and ready to be ruthless in taking a man away from another woman if she can. Even the most intelligent wives are instinctively suspicious of her.

All this is something about which a divorced woman can do very little except to watch her step as carefully as she can and have enough worldly wisdom to accept the situation for what it is. If she can look at it with humor, she is that much to the good.

Fashion Trick

By EILEEN CALLAHAN

DRESSING is disagreeable, exercises are hard, massages take time, stiffen the body, the skirt straight as a pencil. Seaming, piping or long inset lines will add emphasis. Such extraneous details as lapels and pockets should be cut to carry forward the illusion of slimmest.

Such a suit is sketched today. Muriel King designed it in amethyst wool. The long fitted jacket has scalloped revers and a curved cutaway front. The front seaming on the jacket terminates in curved pockets. The straight skirt, innocent of flare or pleats, is cut up a little point at the center front. All the edges are narrowly piped.

'If Winter Comes' at Loew's

DEBORAH KERR

Metro's film version of A. S. M. Hutchinson's novel, of bigotry and injustice, "If Winter Comes," is now to be seen at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters where it opened today.

The picture's stars are Walter Pidgeon, Deborah Kerr and Angela Lansbury.

Against an English village background, "If Winter Comes" relates the story of a man whose liberal ideals fortify him when he is tied to the stake of malicious gossip and false accusation and who in the end finds his vindication in the heart of the woman who has always respected and loved him.

Pat O'Brien Gets Top Role In 'Boy With Green Hair'

Pat O'Brien will undertake the most interesting assignment of his career and one that will mark a complete change of pace from an acting standpoint, as a result of having been assigned to star in the role of a grandfatherly ex-circus performer in "The Boy With Green Hair" at RKO Radio.

Described as "a realistic fantasy," "The Boy With Green Hair" will be produced in Technicolor by Stephen Ames under executive supervision of Dore Schary. Ames has produced some of RKO's biggest features, including "The Spanish Main," "Sinbad the Sailor" and "Tycoon."

Joseph Losey, brilliant young stage and radio director, is to direct. Losey attracted particular attention for his direction of "Galileo," the new Bertolt Brecht play in which Charles Laughton recently starred on Broadway. Ben Barzman and Alfred Lewis Levitt have completed the screenplay of "The Boy With Green Hair" and filming is scheduled to get under way in mid-February.

Danny Kaye Hit At Olympia, Scollay

Danny Kaye's Technicolor comedy hit, "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," is now to be seen at the Olympia and Scollay Theaters. Virginia Mayo is Kaye's romantic teammate in this one. On the same bill is singing cowboy Gene Autry's "Twilight on the Rio Grande."

THE COMEDOWN

(A Complete Short Story)
By HOLLIS STARNES

ALL THE CUSTOMERS who came into Griffin's Drugstore that day had the same words on their lips—Dan Riverton's "comedown." At the local courthouse Dan was pleading a case, one of three defense attorneys for a trio of small-town clients in a definitely small-time case. After his dazzling career as prosecuting attorney, State Senator, Governor and five-term Congressman, today's assignment seemed almost incredible.

But it was true enough—Big Dan was back where he started from. His political star had set with dizzying suddenness. He was just a small-town lawyer again.

As Hannah Griffin, widowed owner of the pharmacy, overheard the gossip, she recalled what her lovely schoolmate who married Dan said of him years before. "People either violently like or dislike Dan, no half measures." In a way, Mary added, that was the measure of a potentially big man. Dan's very physique was challenging—great height, massive frame. His hair was fiery red, but his tongue was smooth as silver. Even in school days no one could rate like Big Dan.

Today the courtroom was packed for his return to the local bench, though the case was of small account. Three boys in junior college were accused of smashing a filling station window. The owner happened to head the college board of directors, and the student body blamed him for ousting a popular instructor. Witnesses claimed to have seen the trio near the scene on the night of the break.

WHAT MADE DAN COME BACK HOME?

The young defendants sought legal counsel; two engaged small-time lawyers, the third somehow blundered onto Dan Riverton, who took the case. Dan didn't know the boy nor his family, who were Silver Lake newcomers; the case offered no chance for oratory.

Principal Character
People thought it quite a comedown for DAN RIVERTON to return to Silver Lake to practice law after years in Congress, but he had different ideas.

dramatics, big fee or wide publicity. Why would Dan Riverton take such a case, townsfolk wondered. What was he thinking of, where was his pride?

For that matter, argued the hot stove leaguers at Hannah Griffin's snack bar, why had Dan come back home anyhow—or stayed after settling the family business that brought him the estate of his old maid aunt?

What was there to hold Dan in Silver Lake, now that he was out of politics? His parents were dead, and his first wife, Hannah's beloved classmate, had died during his congressional years. Had Mary lived, most of Dan's friends thought, he might have remained in political favor, for Mary was calm and wise. Know how to steer this man's talents.

Dan's second wife was a rich, dashing widow whose passion was social life, knowing celebrities. Reports soon reached home that Dan was so busy entertaining at big parties, his work was neglected. He was drinking heavily, too, talking out of turn, making powerful enemies, alienating friends. He had no time to mend political fences at home, and lost his next election.

Dan didn't come home after that. He and his new wife had a big house in Washington and hung onto the spotlight by way of society columns. They were always giving lavish dinners for notables, but rumors persisted that all was not well with the marriage. The rich, dashing widow had not bargained for a politician without portfolio, it developed. She divorced Dan shortly before his aunt's death.

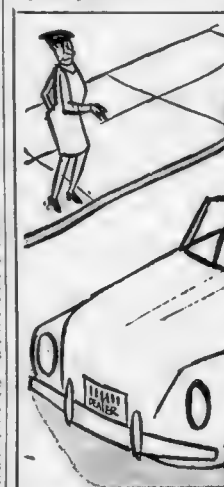

Besides the old-fashioned house with adjoining land, Aunt Mitty left Dan the two-story frame building on Main st., where he first practiced law in a little office over the family grain and feed store. When he came into Hannah's drugstore after his return, his first words were, "My name's still on the office door."

Street, too," said Hannah. Aunt Mitty had never rented the office, kept it for filling business papers, she said, till young David, her great-nephew, grew up and got out of law school. Hannah told Dan how the frugal-minded old lady had chuckled, "He'll only have to change a few letters on the sign!" But David's legal career was set back by four years' Army service; he wouldn't come up for bar exams till next June. "That sign's not going to be changed," Dan announced suddenly. "Dave can tack his name after mine when he's ready. I'm opening business at the old stand!"

"Good luck!" Hannah wished him. There was something pathetic about this man's return to the roots he had sprung from, the sturdy roots of small-town life. The opulent, wide-spreading branches and blooms of his life here had succumbed to storms, but he knew where his roots were.

"Everything at the office looks just like I left it," he said. "My old desk that Mary picked out, all the knick-knacks she bought to dress up the place." Those dime-store flower bowls and ashtrays must look cheap and poor now to this man used to ornate living, thought Hannah. But he said simply, "It's good to be home again, among treasured memories." He'd stay on in Aunt Mitty's house, he said, retain her old housekeeper, practice law. Soon young David would be joining him as junior partner.

—Richter—Copyright, 1944, King Features Synd., Inc.

"This is our latest model. We've eliminated everything."

But would the tempo of a tiny town ever satisfy this man used to city rush and roar, Hannah wondered. After the years away Dan's family and friends were like strangers; young David knew him only as a name in the paper, the 'Santa Claus' who paid prep school and college bills. People were laying bets on how soon Big Dan would leave town when his case came up in court.

It was late afternoon before spectators at the trial came tramping back to the drugstore to broadcast the news. Dan's case was over. He had lost. His client, along with the two other boys, had been fined, severely censured by the Judge, placed on probation. What a terrible comedown for Dan! Bets now were laid that he'd light out on the morning train for New York. But when the hot stove league adjourned to scuttle their various ways home for supper, Dan Riverton himself appeared, smiling and jaunty. Cook's night out, he explained, and made a bee-line for the snack bar. "Haven't much to tempt you with, Dan," Hannah said, "just some left over stew with dumplings and a wedge of lemon meringue pie."

"I'VE COME UP!" RIVERTON GRINNED

"Fine, fine!" beamed Dan and wound his long legs around a stool. "Great day in court, Hannah!"

She managed to stammer, "That's—good news, Dan." "Yes, like old times over there. Different judge on the bench, new clerk of court—but felt just the same. My client got off easy, too—might have fared much worse."

Copyright, 1944, King Features Synd., Inc.

"That was one way to look at it, reflected the druggist. "Eat this while it's hot, Dan."

He plunged into the stew with gusto. "Yes, the Judge handled that case just right. Gave the boys a good scare, but let 'em off light. I tell you, through cases like that in the so-called lower courts of the land, a man can see our American way of life and laws working."

"I never thought of that," said Hannah.

"I got a wonderful kick out of it," he said. "When I was a young lawyer pleading cases in that court, my mind was so much on making a name for myself, I practically missed the big basic issue watching law in a free country work."

"I guess lots of ambitious young lawyers miss that same point," Hannah mused. "They're just thinking of getting ahead."

"Getting ahead," echoed Dan. "A strange game. On the way here I passed old Doc Taylor, out on a hurry call. He didn't know who the sick man was, what he had or how ~~soon~~ he had. Someone was sick, it was his job to help."

"Doctors have to be like that in small towns," said Hannah.

"But it's not just doctors here," Dan declared. "I see a plumber, grocer, carpenter, preacher, wife, mother—decent Americans in a decent community—all making their contributions to the American way of life. No one's pushing, shoving or plotting how to push the other fellow out of the way. And they're the happiest bunch of people I've seen since I left home!"

"You're getting to be quite a philosopher, Dan," Hannah smiled. Dan Riverton grinned his pie and said with a tick, "I hear some folks are worried about me—think this case today was a comedown. Tell 'em not to worry, Hannah. Way I look at it, I've come up!"

Lines to Bald Bill; Gridiron Boiler Plate

By AUSTEN LAKE

THE UNVEILING OF Bill Osmanski as Holy Cross' new professor of the massed frenzy known as football created the wildest boredom in local swineskin circles. Everybody knew it would be the orthodontist who holds a D. D. S. license to hurt people. So glabrous Bill (which means hairless and an antonym of glamorous) becomes the second doctor to take H. C.'s football chair in recent seasons, the other being Dr. Eddie Anderson, an otorhinolaryngologist (oral surgeon).

I have a personal bias toward Dr. Bill because I was a close up witness at the exact moment his star was born, on Oct. 11, 1936 at Hanover, N. H. In truth I might say, with pride, that I was so close to sophomore Bill, who had a nice mop of chestnut curls in those days, that I like to remember my hot breath puffed right down the back of his neck.

THAT WAS THE DAY WHEN Osmanski, a sophomore neophyte playing his first intercollegiate game, scampered 72 yards for the only touchdown against Dartmouth and the clincher of the contest. I remember how he speared around right end, swivelling his fluid hips, and jig stepping past the emerald-jersied tacklers until by the sheer friction of his feet he was in the clear. The last fifty yards of that dash were inches inside the sideline and there were many Dartmouth partisans who shrilled later that he had stepped on the c-line at least once. I know he didn't, and his star was born.

Then the leaves of memory's album flip over to the autumn of 1938 when Bill captained the H. C. team and was playing his valedictory on Fitton Field against Brown. And that was the day when, as linesman, I had the unhappy duty of calling back two of H. C.'s much-needed touchdowns, including a 40-yard pass into the end zone which caused the Worcester bigots in the stands to tear off their clothes and ask me, viva voce, please to drop dead.

And a little later, with the tide of battle flowing this way and that, I called Bill back after he dynamited his way off tackle for another score, and amid massed threats of mayhem he walked over with the ball and said quietly, "What was the matter?" And when I said, "Your tackle beat the ball," he replied calmly, "O. K., we don't want anything that isn't coming to us."

Well, that was Osmanski then, and though I haven't seen much of him in the intervening years, they tell me that still IS Bill. Such little things are memorable in a rowdiedown sports world. So pardon me if I feel an internal attachment for a sportsman who was something more than a great football player. I can give him no higher accolade than to say he's the kind of coach I'd like my kid to play under.

AT LONG LAST the college football coaches, now in New York conclave, have come to the rescue of the kid athletes by asking that the rigid armor plate, such as inflexible headguards, sole leather shoulder and knee cups and papier mache thigh and kidney plates, be softened to prevent injuries. The old jossers are about 10 years too late and, as far back as 1938 this writer was imploring them to take such preventive steps.

The armor which the college man-at-arms wears these years is as hard as an auto fender and just as risky in collision. So that the impact between two girded warriors in complete suits of football mail is often as pulverizing as a head-on smashup between two rodco steers. Worst of all is the rigid plastic helmet, hard as a coal scuttle and as dangerous to the wearer as to the recipient of a tackle. Because half of the deaths in football each season are traceable to head injuries, induced by the shock at the base of the brain. The plastic helmet does not absorb such shocks but imparts them to the neck vertebrae and spinal column.

Such is the effect of this hard headguard when buried in an opponent's body that it is virtually a lethal weapon and requires reciprocating armor, like thigh, rib, shoulder and knee plates hard as stove lids. One begs the other and by softening the armor all around the risk of injury will be greatly lessened. BUT—and there is always a but—the reason which militates against such changes is twofold (1) because the college A. A. directors have large stocks of leftover equipment which would be expensive to dump and (2) the sport goods dealers have equally large stocks of such armor on their shelves and will lobby vigorously against any change for at least a year.

AT RANDOM—The other day Connie Mack, who is 83 and at an age when a man can afford to speak the plain, blunt truth, rose and remarked, "major league baseball is a millionaire's monopoly. Only the rich can afford to own baseball clubs." It's the melancholy truth. For the practical, old-time baseball owner, who originally rose from the steaming masses and clawed his way to the top is rapidly becoming extinct. Connie and Clark Griffith are the only ones left.

Report is that Ted Collins lost another $50,000 on his Boston Yanks, summing up to around $250,000 he has dropped on his professional football hobby. The race is between Mr. Collins' cash and courage. Because sad autopsy data is that Boston has never supported pro football, perhaps because Boston is educated to the pageantry, youthful enthusiasm and tradition of the college game. In her book, "My Life With the Redskins," Corrine Griffith (Mrs. George Preston Marshall) writes, "Austen Lake does not like professional football," and goes on from there. Fact is that I not only like it but played it for four years. I merely reserve the privilege of analyzing the vagaries of sport as they occur, and if I step on any toes, not blameworthy, it's just

Osmanski to Stick With T

By MIKE GILLOOLY

A new home for his mother; a first baby in his own home; a new venture in his own sports career. These were the main points occupying Dr. Bill Osmanski's attention at he returned to Chicago today to resume his dental practice after a hurried trip to his family residence in Providence during which time he was officially named as head coach of Holy Cross College.

But the Bullet will be back next week to sign the papers that will formally assure the post—papers that will read for the next three years and for approximately $10,000 per year.

Osmanski Gives H. C. Fete Big Lift Though Absent

By FRED HOEY

Renewed hopes and optimism furnished the keynote of the Holy Cross Club of Boston dinner last night at the Harvard Club after it was learned earlier that Dr. Bill Osmanski had accepted the position as head football coach for next season.

Unfortunately Coach Osmanski was unable to attend the dinner where 300 were anxious to pay tribute to him.

The various speakers paid glowing tributes to Co-Capt. Bobby Sullivan who was awarded the O'Melia trophy for being adjudged the outstanding player in the H.C.-BC game.

In acknowledging the honor, Sullivan, in his typical modest manner, gave all honor to his Holy Cross teammates.

The most stirring address was delivered by Rev. Fr. Joseph T. O'Callaghan, S. J., former Holy Cross professor who received the Congressional Medal of Honor, during the late war. He is the first chaplain in all American history to win such distinction.

This noble priest combined stirring war stories about his experiences on the aircraft carriers Franklin and Ranger.

Other speakers were "Hiker" Joy, former Boston College, Holy Cross, Canisius and Fordham coach; Jim Ebert, sports announcer; Tom Gamelli, president of the B. C. Varsity Club; Phil Byrne, president of the Holy Cross Club of Boston, and Toastmaster Frank Murray.

Former heavyweight champion Jack Sharkey took a bow as did Edward O'Melia, father of the boy whose memory was honored and Joseph Sullivan, father of the honored guest of the evening.

JOYCE IN KC 1000

Accent on youth in this Olympic year is seen in today's announcement by W. P. Kenney, manager of the Massachusetts K. of C. 23d open meet, that Carl Joyce and Charles Slade have entered special events at Boston Garden, Jan. 24.

Now teammates at Seton Hill Prep, Slade, a colored boy, will make his big-time debut in the Proust 600 yards. Joyce, former Boston Commerce record breaker, will do likewise in the Cheverus 1000-yard run.

GENE INTERS LOUIS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP)—The world heavyweight boxing title hangs by a slender thread, and "any young man with a little ring savvy and a punch can pluck the championship right off that thread," former world heavyweight champion Gene Tunney said.

Tunney was here to receive a trophy from the Red and Real Club for his 538-pound tuna landed in Bimini waters last spring.

He told the club that champion Joe Louis is a "battered old man. The great knacker is in a second rater and showed it in his fight with Walcott."

Maxim Up to 8-5 In Late Wagering For Tandberg Go

By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Joe Maxim went to an 8-5 favorite at noon today to win from Ole Tandberg in their 10-round fight at the Madison Square Garden tonight. Maxim will be spotting his Swedish rival more than 25 pounds. Maxim at 179 pounds is really a light-heavyweight while Tandberg, making his first start in this country, 6-3 and weighs 208 pounds.

The wise money, however, will ride with Maxim because of his boxing ability and wider experience. I talked with Maxim and Tandberg before they left the Edison Hotel to weigh in. Each expressed confidence in his ability to win.

"Jack Kearns has told me I have a chance to get a June bout against Joe Louis," said Maxim. "The 20th Century Boxing Club is having trouble doing business with Walcott. If I can hit Tandberg hard enough to keep him on the canvas, I may have that shot at the championship."

Tandberg told me he feels his punching power and superior weight will enable him to overpower Maxim. The Swedish heavyweight said that his wife would arrive next week and that he's looking forward to other bouts in the U. S. before going back in the spring.

If Johnnie Shkor wins over Jimmy Bivins in Buffalo, Jan. 13, Tandberg said he would consider an offer to fight Shkor in the Boston Garden.

Tonight's bout is being offered at top prices and while there's curiosity about Tandberg, there's no great interest in the outcome. Joe Louis still holds the center of the boxing stage here, and it is the belief of most fans that Walcott will eventually sign for a return bout next June.

Tandberg was comparatively unknown before he fought Baksi, while the latter was riding on the top of the boxing wave. Baksi had been promised the first crack at Joe Louis. Baksi accepted the Tandberg match as he felt it was an easy way to increase his bank account without taking any great risk.

What Baksi thought would be a soft touch proved the major mistake of his ring career. Tandberg won the decision, and Jersey Joe Walcott instead of Baksi got the select date with Louis. Jersey Joe made a sensational showing against Louis, and is assured of a June contest with the champion which will net him $250,000.

Tandberg was introduced from the ring on the night Louis fought Walcott. The Swedish heavyweight is a big, handsome fellow, and he looks as if he possesses an abundance of physical power. Persons who have seen Tandberg in action say he still has a great deal to learn about boxing.

Tandberg is the first Swedish heavyweight of importance to come to this country since Pearson was appearing in the Garden ring. It was Jim Maloney, formerly of South Boston who is now located in California, who halted the ring surge of Pearson.

Dan Carroll had taken over the management of Maloney, and Sharnus was skyrocketed to a top position in the heavyweight division by victories over Arthur DeKuh, Pearson and Hans Diener. Then came a win over Jack Delaney, and Maloney was matched with Jack Sharkey. Boston moved to New York for the bout which was won by Sharkey by a kayo. Sharkey later met with defeat by Jack Dempsey.

Maxim Has Win Over Walcott to His Credit

JOE MAXIM has fought Jersey Joe Walcott three times. Maxim gained one decision against two verdicts won by Walcott.

Jack Kearns manages Maxim. I talked with Kearns on the night of the Louis-Walcott bout. Kearns felt that if Maxim had been in Walcott's position that he would have outpointed Louis by a wide margin.

"Walcott got the break and good luck to him," said Kearns. "Louis was away off form, and a boxer like Maxim would have beaten him beyond any question of doubt."

Maxim is only 25 years of age. He has jet black hair like Jack Dempsey and is built like Dempsey.

Kearns knows that there is no chance for Maxim to get a crack at Louis before Walcott does. He also realizes the "Bomber" will retire, win, lose or draw. Kearns, however, feels that if Louis wins and retires there will be a heavyweight tournament to pick a new champion, while if Walcott takes the title the promoters will seek a white heavyweight to send against him.

NOTRE DAME TO GET WILLIAMS TROPHY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 9 (AP)—The Dr. Henry L. Williams Trophy, awarded annually by the University of Minnesota to the team winning the Associated Press poll to determine the No. 1 collegiate football team in the nation, will be presented to Notre Dame at the Irish football banquet Monday night.

The award goes to the top team in the final poll at the close of the regular grid campaign and does not take into account team performances in bowl or other post-season games. Notre Dame was first in the final AP poll to win the Williams Trophy for the third time. The others were in 1943 and 1946. This gives it permanent possession of the award.

Shinn Favored to Beat Noel Tonight

San Francisco Richlie Shinn, featherweight, will add plenty of color to local boxing when he engages in a scheduled 10-rounder with Charlie Noel from Jersey City, The show will be presented by the Dempsey A. A.

Shinn, the favorite, is not a heavy puncher but packs plenty of boxing class. Shinn and Noel fought a draw some weeks ago in a Holyoke ring. Shinn was reported off form that night and should win tonight by at least a 6-4 margin.

Humberto Sierra took a beating by Shinn in San Francisco two years ago. This same Sierra is now good enough to rate a possible billing with Willie Pep for the feather title. Shinn seems to have come along just as well as Sierra.

"I am glad to be back in Boston," said Shinn. "When I was last here a month ago, I knocked out Jackie Harris in eight rounds. I am sure that I will score my second Boston win tonight." Shinn scored one of his better wins when he defeated Terry McGovern, from London, in a New York ring a few months ago. If Shinn can continue his present ring form he will be in line for a good money shot.

Shinn is most proud of his win over Joey Angelo, scored at Holyoke, Angelo, you know, is scheduled to meet Willie Pep on Jan. 19 at Boston Garden.

The San Francisco China boy is also a war hero. He was decorated for his prominent part in the Battle of the Bulge.

The preliminary card: Bill Daley, Brookline, vs. Milton Lightfoot, Boston; Ralph McNeill, Springfield, vs. George Cote, Haverhill; Hayward Warner, South End, vs. Charlie Dotson, Boston; Bobby Welch, South End, vs. Mike Duffy, Roxbury.

Toronto, Montreal Hurt NHL Expansion

By BILL GRIMES

In the wake of the announcement that James Norris, the hockey tycoon, had purchased the St. Louis Arena came rumors that the Mount City would be represented next year in the National Hockey League.

For purposes of publicity, it has been customary for the magnates to let it be understood that the N. L. was going to expand.

The NHL wasn't recognized as a major organization until 1924, when the late C. F. Adams began to operate the Bruins franchise. It became a six-club unit when the Bruins and Montreal Maroons joined up 23 years ago. Today, it is still operating with only six clubs.

There were 16 clubs from 1926-27 through 1930-31. In the fall of 1925, the so-called amateur Pittsburgh Yellowjackets turned pro and enrolled in the NHL. Then, C. F. Adams, who had more foresight and courage than any Canadian or group of Canadians, bought the Western Canadian Hockey League from the Patrick brothers for $300,000. That made it possible for the New York Rangers, Detroit Cougars and the Chicago Blackhawks.

In 1930, the Pittsburgh franchise was transferred to Philadelphia. The following year, the Ottawa Senators and the Quebec City clubs were shelved, reducing the number of clubs to eight.

By virtue of Canadian pressure, the Senators returned to the NHL in 1933, functioned for two seasons and then moved out to St. Louis for one year before folding up.

The New York Americans were taken away from Bill Dwyer and operated by the NHL until "Red" Dutton bought them. Dutton held on until after the 1941-42 campaign.

Like all sports, hockey was a great money maker during the war years. The NHL was a gold mine. Night after night, the NHL clubs played to capacity houses. The public became more and more sport minded. The better grade of players went off to war but the crowds continued to turn out. Juniors with no professional experience were brought into the league. The cost of tickets were "upped," but Mr. John Q. Public continued to lay his down on the line. It was and still is a bonanza.

During the war years, overtime was discontinued because of the travel difficulties. But realizing the situation, the fans didn't protest—half a loaf was better than none. They didn't complain because only five clubs visited their NHL rinks, even in the face of the fact that there were ten clubs in the American Hockey League, supposedly a "bush" league.

But, as Jack Conway said about the race tracks last summer, the honeymoon is over.

The NHL magnates must turn their attention to the fans. They must expand, regardless of protest from Toronto and Montreal. If it is to continue as a major league, the NHL cannot schedule 61.7 per cent of its 180 games on Saturdays and Sundays. The NHL has no games scheduled for Mondays and Fridays. The clubs play 45 games on Wednesday, 19 on Thursdays and five on Tuesdays.

From the start, the Bruins have always been co-operative with the schedule makers. They accepted Mondays as their hockey night when they broke into the NHL. Then they shifted to Tuesdays, which saved the league, for the NHL could not have carried out its commitments if the Boston Club had demanded to play at home on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

The two Canadian entries, Toronto and Montreal, hog the Saturdays. There are 23 Saturdays available on this season's schedule. Conn Smythe demanded and was allotted 23 Saturday nights for his Leafs.

"We contend, that if hockey is Canada's national sport, it should draw on any night."

Pro Tennis Troupe Arrives in Town

Jack Kramer, Bobby Riggs, Pancho Segura and Dinny Pails, the quartet that headlines this year's professional tennis tour Monday night at the Boston Garden, arrive at the Club today.

The racket wielders, accompanied by their wives, were on their way here today from South Orange, N. J., where Kramer, former world's amateur champion, scored his sixth win in 10 matches with Riggs, king of the pros.

The athletes will rest until Monday when they resume play in a bout that will see the world's top tennis players meeting in 70 odd matches. Kramer and Riggs take the floor following the opening singles match between Segura and Pails.

Graziano Schedules March Non-Title Bout

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Rocky Graziano, world middleweight champion, will meet an opponent yet to be selected in a non-title bout in Washington "early in March," his manager, Irving Cohen, said today. Cohen added it would be an overweight match.

Graziano won the world middleweight crown from Tony Zane last July.

Finest Skiing in 10 Years Within Reach of Everyone

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Almost Alpine conditions now exist on all local and suburban slopes, with the best skiing in 10 years within reach of everyone. We can't recall when there has been such a fine base in this section, topped with from 8 to 10 inches of fluffy powder snow, the kind that sprays up in foamy geysers when you swing those Christies.

As a matter of fact, the local skiing is better than that to be found at many of the major northern developments. For this reason thousands of enthusiasts are saving their money for trips later in the season, taking full advantage of the "backyard bushwhacking" on hand.

Needless to say, every tow is running in high gear, and nearly a dozen hoists are within an hour's drive from Boston. Top slope hereabouts is Locke's Hill, at Amesbury, where three tows are rolling on tempting terrain that offers variety for skiers of every skill.

This hill is floodlighted, hundreds making tracks there during the past few nights. Tomorrow, until 1 p. m., free instruction will be given to any and all children while the youngsters may also have free use of the tows. Excellent!

Here is a list of other tow slopes in operation nearby: Commonwealth Country Club, Newton; Jericho Hill, Marlboro; Ward Hill, Shrewsbury; Groton Country Club; Healey's Hill, Lecomister; Claypit Tow, Andover; Kenwood Tow, Dracut, and the Hamilton slope, at the Carmelite Jr. Seminary.

Jim Phelan Named Coaches' President

NEW YORK, Jan. 9 (AP)—Jim Phelan of St. Mary's was named president of the American Football Coaches Association today to succeed Tad Wieman of Maine.

Other officers elected were: Harvey Harmon of Rutgers, first vice president; L. R. (Dutch) Meyer of Texas Christian, second vice president; Earl Blaik of Army, third vice president, and Tuss McLaughry of Dartmouth, secretary-treasurer.

The following were named trustees: Lynn Waldorf of California, Lloyd Jordan of Amherst, Ike Armstrong of Utah, Carl Snavely of North Carolina, Don Faurot of Missouri, Ray Elliott of Illinois, and George Munger of Pennsylvania.

The coaches' meeting was held in connection with the annual session of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Busy Weekend Faces Schoolboys

By BOB WALDO

Although the last of the hockey leagues to get started this season, Boston Conference teams will enter the crowded schoolboy ice program—four leagues—this week.

MORCOM COMPETES IN MALDEN TRACK MEET.

Heading the list of 562 entries for the AAU Interscholastic and open events at Malden High School's gym tomorrow will be the widely known pole vault and high jump star Richmond 'Boo' Morcom.

the list are Jim Taylor, B. C.; Jim O'Leary, Holy Cross, Ed Crofton, R. I. State, and Jack Wathem of Watertown.

in the 55-yard open dash, Morcom will be pitted against Clyde Crawford of Boston Tech., Leonard Kent of Brown, and Bob Collins of East Providence.

Morcom will have to extend himself to retain his high jump crown, for he will be faced with the task of out leaping Al Eckert, 6 ft. 1 in. jumper from E. Providence, and Kent Keeland, who on many occasions has cleared six feet or better.

old soph, has registered two shut-outs. In the other two he permitted only three scores.

Bright and early tomorrow, the Boston District schools clash for the second time. Last year's titlist, Roslindale will try to maintain the pace they set last week when they tallied eight times. Jamaica Plain will have to center its defenses on winger Foster Yeadon who accounted for three goals and two assists in Roslindale's initial triumph.

East Boston will be facing the comparatively weak Brandeis six, who feel victim to Roslindale. Eastie has a scoring ace of its own in Johnny Christopher. He banged on three counters and an assist while his club was drubbing Charlestown.

Rounding out the week-end duck pastime will be the G. B. I. League. Although Medford is out front, the race is still pretty much of a scramble with only two points separating the top three teams.

The Mustangs will be gunning for their fifth win against fourth place Newton. The Garden City boys came up with their new goalie Bob Dennison in the nets for the first time last week.

All eyes will be on Jack and Ronnie Butt of Belmont, who perform hat tricks with apparent ease when they face Arlington.

Celtics Tune-Up For Week-End Tilts

Coach Honey Russell and his Celtics will go through their last tune-up session tonight in preparation for this week-end's games.

Sunday, Malden Catholic will test Mission High of Roxbury, last year's Catholic Tournament champion.

tomorrow the locals go to Providence for their fifth meeting of the campaign with the Steam Rollers, a club they have beaten four straight times to date. And Sunday night, the Celts return to the Arena for a clash with the Washington Caps.

2 Ice Capades Trophies for Derby Skaters

By JACK CONWAY, JR.

The Ice Capades, which has always worked in the closest co-operation with the Hearst Silver Skates Derby, has donated two lavish trophies which will be presented to the winners of the men and women intermediate speed skating championships at Boston Garden on Sunday, Feb. 1.

"The trophies are as nice as any ever offered to Silver Skates winners," said Ben Levas, Derby director. "I imagine that the trophies would retail at about $100 each if they were purchased in one of the local stores."

"Red" McCarthy, Ice Capades' skating star, was on hand at the time of the presentation.

"The Silver Skates Derby is close to my heart," said McCarthy. "It was in 1940 when I made my Boston debut in a speed skating specialty with the Silver Skates Derby. I always felt that the Derby was my great opportunity. If it had not been for the Derby, I might never have been signed to an Ice Capades contract," added the former Canadian Olympic team speedster.

"I had just finished a long tour of Europe where I skated before Queen Elizabeth and others when I hit New York and started looking for booking."

"Ben Levas called me at New York and asked me if I would skate in the Record-American Derby. I was tickled to death," added McCarthy.

"It was on that Sunday afternoon in 1940, while exhibiting in the Derby, that the Ice Capades' scouts saw me and put my name on the contract. I have skated with the Capades ever since."

The 1948 Derby will have about 700 novice "Red" McCarthy's racing for the ten speed skating championships. More than 30 trophies and medals will be awarded the winners of the various men's and women's championships.

The Derby committee has now filed 278 entries. That figure is the highest in Derby history for this early date.

Some of the recent entries have been received from: Mary Walsh, 11, Bolton st., South Boston; James Fugong, 11 Savin Hill ave., Dorchester; Candy Finnerty, 14, Beacon st., Brookline; Edward Kenney, 10, Winn st., Woburn; Laura Syers, Waylam st., Roxbury; Ann Osenton, 13, Health st., Chestnut Hill; Richard Leo Burke, 11, Blake st., Gloucester; Velma Kershaw, 12, Quincy st., Roxbury; Lois Hartel, 12, High rd., West Roxbury; Robert Lanergan, 10, Church st., Watertown; Mildred Sullivan, 10, Prairie ave., Providence.
